Resolution Urging Bus Grant

Adopted by Citizens.

BOARD GETS NEW CODE TO REGULATE BUILDING

Rigid Inspection and Better Construction Called For in Rules.

The Montgomery County Civic Federation, at the Bethesda School last night, adopted resolutions protesting against legislation barring children of the county from the District of Columbia schools.

The resolution was submitted by J. P. James, chairman of the school committee.

Resolutions asking the Maryland Public Service Commission to grant the Montgomery Bus Lines, Inc., permission to do an intrastate business between Gaithersburg, Rockville and Bethesda, were adopted.

The commission will hold a hearing on the matter in Baltimore Friday.

The association also went on record as favoring having the county place fire saving apparatus along the banks of the Potomac River.

The same resolution, introduced by J. S. Armstrong, president of the Cabin John Association, also urged that a pulmotor be installed at the Bethesda fire house.

New building regulations, exacting more care in the construction of buildings of all classes, and embracing a provision for a rigid inspection system of all new buildings in the Maryland metropolitan area, will be submitted by County Building Inspector J. Fredrick Imlrie, to the Montgomery County Board of Commissioners today at their regular meeting at Rockville.

Heretofore, building permits only were issued by the board of commissioners, leaving the applicants to construct such buildings as they might in conformity to the regulations of whatever subdivision, town, or community in which the new buildings were to be.

The new regulations are designed with the special intention of reducing the fire hazard throughout the area in which they are to be effective, and to obtain more harmony in the placing of buildings so that they will, when completed, lend themselves to the general beauty of their surroundings.

The new regulations, should they be adopted today by the board of commissioners, will become effective on or about April 1, two weeks public advertising being necessary after the commissioners' acceptance of them before they can be enforced.

Percy K. Milliner, of Takoma Park, who was arrested in Reading, Pa., by Sgt. Earl Burdine, of the Montgomery County police, upon a bench warrant charging desertion and non-support, was taken to Rockville, where he was released in $500 bail to await court action.

The Montgomery County board of commissioners will have hearings today upon the petition of the Villa Roma Club, Inc., a resort between Bethesda and Rockville, that it be granted a license to conduct a restaurant, with dancing privileges. The object of the hearings is to allow those who object to the issuance of the license to appear and state their reasons for not wishing the license granted.

Under a new law, such resorts must now pay a license fee of $1,000. The Villa Roma is the first to apply for a license.

Missing Man Sought By Harbor Police

Missing since Sunday morning when he told his wife he was going to the south end of Highway Bridge to assist in the repair of a motorboat engine, Cleveland D. Kent, 39 years old, an engineer employed at the National Geographic Society's printing establishment, is being sought by police.

He left home at 10:30 p.m. on Sunday, telling his wife he would return shortly.

Mrs. Kent, mother of four small children, yesterday appealed to the police to locate him. A search by harbor precinct police failed to reveal a disabled motorboat, and police in their efforts to locate Kent's automobile.

Two friends were to have accompanied him on the boat repairing errand. Kent, his wife, and two children are known only as "Fred" and "Nelson."

TRADE BOARD GROUP SUPPORTS MAJ. HESSE

Irregularities which have held the attention of the Gibson subcommittee of the House.

McQuade Conducts Inquiry.

Mr. McQuade himself is presiding at the Fidelity investigation, but the Helmut investigation is being handled by Edward C. Meredith, acting chairman of the grand jury. It appears that the grand jurors are specially interested in the Fidelity investigation because of the testimony before the subcommittee to the effect that local gamblers, who objected to the activities of Fidelity, contributed the sum of $2,000 to have him transferred.

Helmut is said to have remarked that he had been transferred after a conversation with Capt. Charles H. Bremmner about an alleged gambling place at which time, it was alleged, Capt. Bremmner, who is in command of the Fourth Precinct, stated that the work of raiding gambling establishments was the duty of the plain clothes officers.

Two Reports to Be Made.

Capt. Bremmner is a witness before the grand jury in connection with the Helmut investigation. Capt. Charles H. Headley, who testified before the subcommittee that he smelled liquor on the breath of Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, is also a witness, as is Capt. Robert E. Doyle, and Policemen Fraser and Trunnell.

The grand jury is expected to make two reports, one of which is for the subcommittee and the other for Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, of the District Supreme Court.

Other witnesses in attendance upon the grand jury are Detective Curtis H. Trammell, of headquarters; Sgt. J. H. Lee, of the Fourth Precinct, and Sgt. J. E. Bono, of the First Precinct.

The District Commissioners do not propose to begin their investigation of the drinking charges made by Representative Blanton against Maj. Hesse until the Gibson subcommittee of the House District committee has completed its probe of the Helmut investigation, it was indicated yesterday at the District Building.

Although the Commissioners are empowered by Congress to sit as a trial board and hear charges against a subordinate, the city heads have not decided whether their investigation will take on the aspects of a trial of the police chief or whether they will permit Maj. Hesse to answer the charges in writing.

TESTIMONY ENDED AT HEARD HEARING OF CITIZENS BOARD

Yaden and Emig Make Statements
Held Favorable to Car Companies.

LABOR REPRESENTATIVES PRESENT THEIR PLEAS

Clayton Says Congress Will Kick Open Doors to North American Questioning.

Taking testimony in the street car merger hearing ended yesterday in a many-sided hot fusillade, James G. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, appearing in the capacity, however, of merely a delegate to the federation from the Petworth Citizens' Association, and Clayton Emig, a minority of one of the federation's committee on public utilities, made statements that gave every appearance of being a mere formality.

Yaden, who was accompanied by William McK. Clayton and W. A. Roberts, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the federation's committee, took the stand and testified that the proposed merger agreement would provide for the public utility, consolidation in an attempt to cross-examine Harley P. Wilson, chief merger sponsor, about merger benefits that might accrue to the public through his holding stock in the North American Co., of New York, whereupon Clayton predicted that the merger would "kick the door wide open" on that phase of the investigation when the merger agreement "reached the hill."

Exhibits Are Introduced.

Roberts introduced a mass of exhibits to show that there is a period of public utility consolidation, and that the proposed merger should not be fixed at this time. John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., and a member of the board of directors of the North American Co., also introduced exhibits.

Yaden's statement contained the day's main points of contention. He saw in it a preliminary airing of strife in the Federation of Citizens' Associations which is expected to result in a stormy meeting of the board of directors of the North American Co. after consideration of the merger plan has been concluded. Yaden appeared in a dual capacity, first reading the report of the Citizens Advisory Council, of which he is chairman, criticizing several features of the merger agreement.

He followed that by reading a prepared statement as a delegate from the Petworth association to the federation. In the latter statement he reviewed his committee's report of local transit units and presented an implication of criticism of the federation committee's handling of the merger issue, in the following language:

"Finally the unification plan was submitted to the Public Utilities Commission and then a bitter and acrimonious fight which had been smoldering for some time burst forth in all its fury. Apparently there was no effort to get together, to compromise and to reach an understanding on a problem very vital to the citizens and to the utility companies because if merger fails the two traction companies must get along with an inadequate return on a fair valuation of their property for the public purposes or they will ask for an increased fare which will not be pleasing to the car riding public and which will place those who are responsible for the failure of merger in the position of having to explain something that can not be explained to those who are compelled to drop extra pennies represented by the increased fare into the fare boxes."

"When some of us who have voted against the merger for years said that we would support the plan which your commission has before you the framework or fundamentals on which a merger of the two street railway companies could be worked out, we were and still are bitterly criticized, and even you gentlemen of the commission and the public utility companies have not escaped the vile tongues and poison pens of slander. But we should turn a deaf ear to such criticism and bear in mind that it requires but a little ability to criticize and remember that there are many unfortunate confined within the walls of St. Elizabeths who are very capable of criticizing."

"So I appear before your honorable commission to beg you to try to wade through the bewildering maze of inconsistencies which have been presented to you during the last few days and evolve a merger that will be fair and equitable first to the car riders and second to the utility companies."

Yaden Omits "Ramrod."

In the next paragraph of his prepared statement Yaden said that he and his associates were looking to the commission "to eat some ramrod soup" and send to Congress a merger, but in reading the statement he omitted the "ramrod" reference to the Commissioners.

He added:

"If you and your staff shall conclude that $50,000,000 is too high a valuation for rate-making purposes, then we urge that you do not approve it, but, on the other hand, if you are of the opinion that it is not too high, then we beg and urge you to accept it."

He failed to mention that the Petworth Citizens Association had voted to withhold approval of the inclusion of the merger of the Washington Rapid Transit Co.

Emig said that he would not bring in the question of operation of one man cars following merger and then proceeded to introduce it in a variety of ways. He spoke of the Hanning merger plan and concluded by saying:

"The proof here shows valuations of the street car properties aggregating $62,500,000. Therefore the inclusion of constituted authority and should be respected by the public. The federation committee comes here untrusting. It is not for me to question the decisions of its majority. Yet I question the propriety of their contention that the courts are wrong in value the opinion of a strong minority. Approval of the agreement would be in the interest of the public. The public is about as selfish as the owners are alleged to be."

Emig Says "I Am."

"Are you a member of the public utility committee of the federation?" asked William G. McAdoo, attorney for Wilson.

"That's all," said McAdoo.

Arthur Sturges, associate of W. Jett Lauck in representing the street car men's union, was the first of the labor witnesses. He outlined the guarantees the union asks to have included in the charter of the merged company, described efforts to induce the companies to accept the proposal, and the "ramrod" reference.

"Even if we had our rights specified in the merger act we would not expect to get anything after the proposed merger had been satisfied. Under the proposed financial structure, when the pecuniary demands of stockholders have been met there will be nothing left for employees or the public except that the public might get slightly increased convenience and would have to pay no more."

"We are asked to run the risk of being able to secure an agreement with the new company. But the risk is too great. It is an attempt to take chances with the future, particularly when we see that no risk is being assumed by the stockholders."

The lawyers for the companies, in cross-examining Sturges, drew from him the statement that he might not have appeared in opposition to the merger if it had not been for the guarantees in the charter had been met. Ralph B. Fiehrly, people's counsel, asked:

"Is the event, your duty to your clients would have been performed, would it not?"

"Yes," replied Sturges.

A. G. Hayden, president of the local union and a delegate to the Central Labor Union, read for the latter organization a general criticism of the merger plan, avowing desire for a merger but not for the pending plan. He criticized valuation, rate of return and other features. John R. Newman, representing the District of Columbia Federation of Employers' Unions, said he could not qualify as a valuation expert but that he was an expert on "strap hanging" and as such invited cross-examination by the people's counsel. He had outlined a criticism of the plan similar to that presented by Hayden.

Wilson Questioned by Clayton.

Clayton began his cross-examination of Wilson by getting the latter to repeat that he was disinterested in his advocacy of the merger and would not get therefrom "a dollar of profit." He then asked a substantial shareholder in the North American Co., of New York, which owns 47 percent of the Washington Rapid Transit Co., to state whether in turn will own 55 percent of the new merged company, would benefit in dividends and particularly if the $3,800,000 paid for the stock of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. would be distributed in dividends.

After Wilson had answered the question, Clayton asked:

"I don't know that that is an issue here. It is an issue of private business. I decline to answer."

Cross-examining Wilson on his statement that he owned 55 percent of the Washington Rapid Transit Co., Clayton asked:

"Did you enter the board of directors of the North American Co. as a competing company, the bus company?"

Wilson answered that he was principal owner of the bus company and that he had no competing company, the street car companies. There ensued a wrangle over the admissibility of the questions and John W. Childress, chairman of the commission, stopped Clayton from asking any more about the North American Co. Clayton asked:

Acrae Limitation Urged by Vrooman

The Democratic party should make farm relief its main issue in the coming election, Carl Vrooman, former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, told the Women's National Democratic Club yesterday at 1928 New Hampshire avenue northwest, where said that the Republicans have done nothing to aid the farmers, who are as badly off now as they were at the start of the Coolidge administration.

Vrooman suggested that an acreage limitation plan be incorporated into the farm relief plan, as a measure that would tend to act as a check upon the latter system. He pointed out that without such an influence, the demand for land would be unlimited, since higher prices tend always to stimulate production. Acreage limitation, effectively worked out, the speaker stated, would be a "fire menace," where they would be most needed.

The association contended that the elimination of the Second and Bryant street pumping station, following elimination of estimates for its maintenance by the Senate subcommittee on appropriations, was a "fire menace" last night by the Congress Heights Citizens Association, in a protest adopted at their meeting at the Congress Heights Baptist Church.

The association contended that the elimination of the Second and Bryant street pumping station would throw the entire pumping burden on the Dalecarlia plant. In the event that the latter would be eliminated, it was contended that the District would be forced to go without water during the period of its repair. The "fire hazard" resulting would cause an automobile factory in the area to be destroyed.

Figures were cited to show that, whereas $100,000 annually was required formerly to operate the Second and Bryant streets plant, the War Department when pressed was able to lower the estimate to $20,000. The association contended that the Dalecarlia pumping unit costs $400,000. As these funds are covered by the District water rent, the association contended that the War Department should have no objection to their appropriation, it was held.

The association nominated William S. Kelly, a candidate for election to the Citizens Advisory Council, to represent the citizens in the matter. The association also nominated William S. Kelly, a candidate for election to the Citizens Advisory Council, to represent the citizens in the matter.

CHAUFFEUR ADMITS SLAYING 2 WOMEN AND A GIRL WITH AX

Quarrel Over Check Led to Attack, Confession to Texas Officers Says.

3 BODIES DISCOVERED BY SUSPICIOUS NEIGHBOR

Prisoner, 24, Is Removed to Fort Worth Jail From Sulphur Springs.

Sulphur Springs, Tex., March 12 (A. P.).—Admission that he slew three members of the family by whom he had been employed as a chauffeur for four years was made today by Newton Byrnes, 24.

The bodies of Mrs. J. E. Jurgens, her daughter, Myrna, 13, and Mrs. Jurgens' mother, Mrs. Rosa Schirra, were found in San Angelo yesterday at the family residence where they had been killed by a hatchet.

Within a few hours after the finding of the victims, Byrnes was arrested on suspicion by authorities of Sulphur Springs. He signed a statement today confessing the crime. A quarrel about a check to which Byrnes said he had signed the name of one of his victims preceded the "triple slaying" on March 3, said the statement.

Mrs. Jurgens slain first, he asserted. Her daughter, who was in the room at the time, was then struck down, and Mrs. Schirra, who was in the kitchen, was the last to be killed.

After the killings, Byrnes spent the night in a San Angelo hotel, and before leaving the city returned to the Jurgens home and ransacked it, taking $40 and some jewelry, he admitted.

Byrnes was taken from the city by officers tonight. Their destination was believed to be Fort Worth, where the hatchet used in the slaying had been taken for photographing of finger prints.

District Attorney J. F. Sutton, of San Angelo, said a special term of court would be called to dispose of the case.

Neighbor Finds the Bodies.

The three bodies were found in the Jurgens home yesterday when a neighbor became suspicious. A hatchet, a large knife and an ice pick were found near the bodies, he admitted.

Mrs. Jurgens, employed by an oil company at Texon, Tex., was at that place when notified of the slayings. No statement from him was made public.

One of the leads followed by authorities was the report that Myrna, a student in the Academy of Immaculate Conception here, left the school March 2, after telling her teachers her father had called for her. The school officials said the child left the playground so hurriedly they were unable to say who called for her. They said she often had been permitted to leave when her father came for her on his visits to his family.

Police said the house had been ransacked and left in an "indescribable" condition. However, they scouted a robbery theory advanced by neighbors.

The body of the girl had been subjected to a severe attack. Physicians believed the killings occurred about a week ago, when a neighbor recalled hearing screams during the night, but failed to investigate.

Bishop Fears Television Imperils Bath Privacy

Barnet, England, March 12 (A.P.).—Dr. M. B. Furze, Bishop of St. Albans, speaking at a conference, said that he was doubtful whether modern scientific discoveries have brought happiness to the human race.

The bishop plaintively asserted that his bath is the only place where he can have absolute privacy these days and he fears now he is to be robbed of this by recent developments in television.

"I view with great trepidation the coming of the day when by television my morning ablutions will be reflected on the screen in New York for the entertainment of the American public," said the bishop.

He is the tallest bishop in England, being 6 feet 4.

Rabbi Who Shunned Enjoyment Is Dead

Warsaw, March 12 (A.P.) (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Rabbi Meir Yechiel, of Ostrowiec, died in a Polish Jewish, ascetic and scholar, is dead at the age of 74 years.

Embracing the theory that life on earth was given not to be enjoyed, the ascetic when he was 30 decided to spend his days and nights in study and prayer and to abstain from eating every day except Saturday, when it is a religious commandment to eat. For more than 40 years he continued these six-day fasts, although physicians warned him against the practice. At night he went to bed in his clothes in order not to enjoy his sleep.

The rabbi was a recognized authority on Jewish law.

The first stop will be Columbus, Ohio, and other places to be visited are Bolling Field, Washington; Langley Field, Va.; Fort Bragg, N. C.; Augusta, Ga.; Fort Benning, Ga.; Columbus, Ga.; Monroe, La.; Fort Sill, Okla.; Fort Kelly, Kan.; Maxwell Field, Ala.; and then back to Selfridge Field. Long-distance flight experience is the principal purpose of the trip, Col. Danforth said.

The commander announced that about the same time the tour is made he will visit all landing fields, Army and municipal, in the Sixth Corps Area. Forty-three fields in Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan are included in his itinerary.

GIRL, WHO HAD MOTHER FINED, SPOORS HER HOME

Rejects Parent's Reconciliation
Attempt and Promise of
No More Spankings.

PARENT MAY GET PAROLE

Kansas City, March 12 (A.P.).—Lorene Jurgens, 16-year-old high school student, whose mother, Mrs. Christine Woodside, 34, was fined $100 for whipping her today, refused her mother's attempt to effect a reconciliation.

The girl retained an attorney to protect her interests and declared she did not believe her mother was sincere in her promise of no more whippings if Lorene returned home.

"I can't help but believe she would punish me for all this if I went home now," the daughter said.

The Kansas City Star says it has learned that Mrs. Woodside has in effect agreed to conditions on which she was offered a parole.

The Star says Mrs. Woodside, who was released on bond, and who declared she would spank the girl again, last night sought to bring about a reconciliation through the Rev. Robert Karr, Presbyterian minister.

When Mrs. Woodside, former snake charmer and lion tamer in a carnival, Friday was held to answer charges of an "unwarranted severe" spanking to her daughter, she forbade her husband to pay the fine and spent the night in jail. On Saturday, however, Mrs. Woodside returned to the hotel she manages with the statement she would not accept a parole conditional on her promise to punish the girl so severely again.

Mr. Karr informed the Star Mrs. Woodside said she was ready to make any sacrifice necessary "to get my baby back."

Feels Bad 6 Months; Finds Neck Broken

Special to The Washington Post.

Appleton, Wis., March 12.—Small wonder that Otto Mosholder, 54, a farmer living near here, has not felt well for 6 months when he fell out of a tree, for an examination now reveals the farmer had suffered a broken neck. He had been doing his work about the farm since that time.

The doctors called the injury a "complete dislocation of a vertebra," but to the layman it is simply a broken neck.

An operation at present may do more damage than good, doctors think, and Mosholder is to be kept under observation for several weeks. He is able to get around and do part of his farm work, but he is unable to hunt or hunt for lost cattle in a swamp near his home.

Former U. S. Woman Up for Parliament

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

London, March 12.—Mrs. Zola Hoffman, a native American from New York, who was naturalized as a British subject in 1919, will be a candidate for Parliament, representing North Norfolk, in the coming election, according to the announcement which she confirmed today.

Mrs. Hoffman is the widow of Charles Frederick Hoffman, a well-known American in public affairs, who died in public office and pillar of the community, before going to England following the death of her husband. Before her marriage she was Zella K. Preston. At present she has two residences in England, one of them at Kings Lynn, Norfolk. She was chosen as a candidate Saturday.

Quake Forms Cones; Smoke Pours Forth

Calanissetta, Sicily, March 12 (A.P.).—Light earth shocks were felt here today. The duration was only a few seconds, and little damage was done.

At Piazza Armerina, situated at an elevation of 2,400 feet, the earthquake caused the opening up of small cones from which smoke issued.

ROME-VIENNA ISSUE REOPENED BY SPEECH

Austrian Deputy Speaks of Degenerate Statesmen in Reply to Mussolini.

Vienna, March 12 (A.P.).—The controversy between Austria and Italy over the Austrian Tyrol has again flared into prominence in Vienna just when it appeared that the dispute was temporarily closed.

Premier Mussolini's speech on March 3 was the occasion for an outburst by Deputy Ellenbogen, former president of parliament, in a speech last night. He declared:

"It has always been regarded as cowardly and base when the responsible leader of a great state attacked a weak neighbor with threats of war. For the most degenerate statesmen never could reconcile it with their honor to break binding official obligations assumed by their predecessors."

In view of Premier Mussolini's protest against previous outbursts in the Austrian Parliament against Italian rule in the Tyrol, repercussions are expected from Rome.

Turkey in Arms Conference.
Angora, Turkey, March 12 (A.P.).—The Turkish government today announced that it had accepted the League of Nations' invitation to participate in the preparatory conference for the limitation of armaments in the Turkish Republic, which will be held in Ankara.

British Cross for Hinkler.
London, March 12 (A.P.).—King George has awarded the Royal Air Force Cross to Bert Hinkler, noted aviator. The cross was awarded in recognition of Hinkler's services to aviation by his recent brilliant flight to Australia.

Marshal Foch Rebuked For His Political Talks

Paris, March 12 (A.P.).—Marshal Foch, a sort of demigod in France, is supposed to have been severely rebuked by order of the minister of war for talking politics and talking them too much. This interpretation is put on a recent order by Paul Painleve, forbidding the military "of whatever degree of the hierarchy, from taking part in any political manifestations of whatever form."

Marshal Foch is not a free talker, but when he does speak he says what he has on his mind. Communist and other extreme left members of parliament have protested against the tone of some of his speeches at public ceremonies, to which he was detailed by the government. Usually, they have been offended when the great soldier makes caustic comments on Communist enterprises, but scant attention ever has been given by newspapers to such attacks.

The reiterated of the rule in a new order is taken as the compliance in part of the minister of war with the demand of radical politicians that Foch and others observe the rule.

REMOVAL OF BURGUM'S HEAD OF LEE RESTRAINED

Court Grants Injunction to
One of Owners of Stone Mountain.

Decatur, Ga., March 12 (A.P.).—A temporary injunction restraining the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial Association from removing the head of Gen. Robert E. Lee, carved on the mountain by Gutzon Borglum, former sculptor of the Confederate memorial, has been granted by Judge B. H. Hatcher in De Kalb County Superior Court.

The injunction proceedings were filed by Mrs. Frank Mason, one of the owners of Stone Mountain and a member of the memorial association. The petition stated that no effort was being made to interfere with completion of the memorial carving which is being done by Augustus Lukeman, who succeeded Borglum, but merely to prevent destruction of the association's head.

Plans to unveil the work done by Lukeman have been completed and the date set for April 9, the anniversary of the surrender at Appomattox. Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, has accepted an invitation to make the principal address. Hearing on the injunction was set for March 17.

Atlanta, Ga., March 12 (A.P.).—The petition by which the Stone Mountain Memorial Association has sought to restrain from removing the head carved by Gutzon Borglum, is based on a "misconception of facts and law," said a statement today by Rogers W. Venable, publicist for the association.

He said Augustus Lukeman, who succeeded Borglum and created a new design for the memorial, also has carved the head of Lee, which is the figure of Lee; that it has removed a good portion of the Borglum head, and that retention of the latter as it now appears would be "even more absurd than the retention of the whole."

"The head or so-called head of Lee, carved by Borglum is a blot and an eyesore on the mountain," said the statement. "It could not be incorporated in Lukeman's design for numerous reasons, one of which is that Borglum carved his model when the association canceled its contract with him. The removal of the small amount of work done by Borglum simply completes his own disfigurement, which he started himself."

PLANE ASKED TO SPEED FOOD TO HUNGRY TOWN

Two Parties of Volunteers
Struggle to Snowbound
Detour, Mich., With Mail.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 12 (A.P.).—A rescue party which set out yesterday from Gagetown for the village of Detour, isolated by snow drifts and suffering from a food shortage, reached the village today after a long and arduous journey.

Two men who left here also bearing mail, reached the stranded village today after a long and arduous journey, reporting piled drifts which greatly impeded their progress.

A snow plow sent out from here yesterday and which had progressed about 8 miles, was unable to make more than half a mile advance through the drifts, which were melting slightly. Although the drifts were melting, the residents of the village, accustomed to winter hardships, the absence of flour, eggs and butter in the household larder, are being keenly felt by the inhabitants.

Telephone communication has been maintained and it is planned to send out another plow today.

Detour, which is 50 miles south of here, is girdled by snow drifts 15 feet deep in places. Residents have been unable to leave the village since January 20 and have received no mail or food, according to word sent by telephone.

A Postmaster William Snell, of this city, requested that a plane from Selfridge Field at Mount Clemens, Mich., be sent to the village with food and mail. The plane, however, never said their only two transport planes had been wrecked in a recent northern flight around Michigan and had been abandoned in the snow.

There was also some question as to whether the planes could be landed in the heavy snow.

Detour has a population of approximately 100, composed almost exclusively of Finnish descendants.

Telephone reports from the snow-bound community today were that its food and fuel supply is exhausted. Plans are being made to send in inhabitants on rafts until relief is sent.

Some snow, pushed by two of the largest available tractors, have failed to make much headway against the huge snowdrifts, said to be 15 feet deep in places.

Work Sunday opened the Dixie highway to Pickford, only 24 miles south of this city. It is understood that there are about 10 stranded automobiles between Sault Ste. Marie and Pickford, a distance of 24 miles, most of them covered by snowdrifts after having been abandoned by their owners.

Two more inches of snow fell last night.

Two tons of hay is being sent by the county board of agriculture to Hubert in an attempt to save the starving herd in that vicinity.

Another Michigan peninsula village hard hit by the snow blockade is Grand Marais, near Lake Superior and 26 miles from a railroad. The village has been in communication with the outside world only one day during the past three weeks, and a serious food shortage is said to exist there.

B. J. Trudell, former Coast Guard officer, is Grand Marais today for the State capital to urge State aid for the marooned village.

HICKMAN GETS LIFE FOR THOMAS MURDER

Los Angeles, March 12 (A.P.).—A sentence of life imprisonment for the murder of C. Ivy Thomas, druggist, today was passed on William Edward Hickman by the California supreme court. The sentence was passed after the slaying of Marian Parker, 12-year-old Los Angeles school girl.

W. E. Hickman, 17-year-old, was sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of Thomas, who was shot when the two youths staged a holdup in his drug store, with the sentence being passed today. The two prisoners were convicted by the jury last week. In each case the verdict was guilty of murder, with a recommendation of imprisonment for life.

County jail officials said Hickman probably would be taken to the prison Friday. Indications were that secrecy would be observed in the removal of the slayer to death row to avoid any demonstration against him. The death sentence was passed after Hickman had been in the jail for 27 days. A legal stay is obtained in the mean time.

MINERS ARE TRAPPED BY FIRE AND WATER

10 Remain in U. S.-Owned
Shaft in Mexico; Bodies of 11 Have Been Recovered.

Mexico City, March 12 (A.P.).—Trapped between fire above and water below, 10 American miners were held in a U. S.-owned shaft in Mexico today, according to reports received by the mining commission.

The fire continues within the mine and with the failure of the pumps to act water continues flooding the lower levels. The miners are being kept in the shaft by the mining commission, which has received reports that the miners are being kept in the shaft by the mining commission.

The Mexican Corporation, owner of the Aurora mine, asserts the extent of the disaster has been exaggerated in some dispatches. Its information is that thirteen dead and ten entombed comprise the number of casualties. Dispatches to Mexican newspapers give different figures. One newspaper places the number at 18 dead; another dispatches say 16 dead; still another reports 50 dead. Most of the dispatches thus far received are vague and give few details of the disaster.

State plows, pushed by two of the largest available tractors, have failed to make much headway against the huge snowdrifts, said to be 15 feet deep in places.

Work Sunday opened the Dixie highway to Pickford, only 24 miles south of this city. It is understood that there are about 10 stranded automobiles between Sault Ste. Marie and Pickford, a distance of 24 miles, most of them covered by snowdrifts after having been abandoned by their owners.

YOUTH PROBABLY WILL BE TAKEN TO PRISON FRIDAY FOR EXECUTION.

St. Louis, March 12 (A.P.).—Four of six delegates elected by Republican political conventions in Missouri today to the national convention at Kansas City, were instructed to vote for Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, as the Republican presidential nominee.

The other two delegates, elected at the Seventh Congressional District convention at Sedalia, are uncommitted. No plan was expressed by the delegates to make any change in the preference made by one, while the other is in Florida. The Eighth Congressional District meeting at Jefferson City and the Twelfth District meeting at Springfield, West Plains and the Sedalia meeting expressed confidence in the Coolidge administration.

PREACHER-POLICEMAN BEATS BALL PLAYER

San Antonio, Tex., March 12 (A.P.).—Rube Benton, former big league pitcher, and now with the Minneapolis American Association Club, ran afoul of the curfew law and a preacher-police officer, attempted to question Benton. The ballplayer resented his efforts, and after the melee, was taken to police headquarters, from where he was taken to a hospital for first aid. No charges were filed.

RAILROADS ACCUSED OF AIDING TO BREAK UP MINE UNIONISM

Pennsylvania Said to Have Refused Contracts to Closed Shop Coal Concerns.

NEW YORK CENTRAL LIKEWISE CHARGED

Business Depression in Field Attributed, at Hearing, to Long Strike.

(Associated Press.)

Confining its attention to charges by the United Mine Workers that the railroads are in a conspiracy to break unionism in the coal fields, the Senate committee investigating the bituminous industry yesterday obtained the first testimony aimed to support that allegation.

Thomas Sagie, general manager of the Roseville, Ohio, coal Co., declared the Pennsylvania Railroad "willfully and maliciously" sought to put his concern out of business by withdrawing a sitting lease of its mine and continuing purchases of its fuel mine by union labor. These actions occurred, he said, after he had been told by Henry Owens, purchasing agent, that the railroad "would not pay any price for coal to any operator which would make possible paying salaries in accordance with the Jacksonville agreement."

Chester Penrod, Crookville, Ohio, president of the Robinson Coal Co., testified that Owens had notified him by telegram from Chicago that no coal mined by his firm would be purchased by the Pennsylvania Railroad unless notices were posted at the mine "that the United Mine Workers would be recognized in no way."

Tells of Crookville Situation. Frank J. Bender, union officer at Zanesville, Ohio, then detailed the situation in the Crookville district, declaring that several coal companies there had signed agreements with the union in the hope of renewing operations after the strike was called on April 1, 1927.

"When they tried to have their Pennsylvania Railroad fuel contracts renewed," he added, "they were either informed by the railroad company or the broker who sold their coal that the coal companies in the Crookville district operating on the New York Central, Bender continued, "were furnishing this railroad with fuel orders and the price was cut so low that the coal companies were compelled to close their mines because they could not meet the low price set by the railroad company."

"These mines," he said, "are not equipped to load other than run-of-mine coal which is the grade mostly used by the railroads for their fuel. Other concerns do not want this grade of coal, therefore the operators of these mines had no other alternative but to close their mines."

Contracts for Open-Shop Mine. Bender maintained that most of the Crookville mines "could be in operation today under a contract with the United Mine Workers" had they received the same consideration from the railroads regarding the fuel prices that was accorded prior to April, 1927. He said the Columbus Coal & Mining Co., operating in Coshocton County, Ohio, on an "open-shop" basis during the strike received fuel contracts from the Pennsylvania company.

"It is needless to state," concluded Bender, "that the mines being idle for this long period of time has extended a depression into other industries in this section of Ohio, some of which have closed their doors. Business men in the large department stores of Zanesville and Cambridge, Ohio, the buying centers of this territory, frankly admit that they are losing money because of the mines being idle, a number of which could be operating if the railroads would pursue the same policy as they did prior to the strike of April 1, 1927."

ARMY AIR CAMERA TO GET BIG TEST

2,500 Square Miles in Florida to Be Photographed in Six Weeks.

An aerial photographic group will leave Belling Field this week to make an aerial map of the eastern and southern coasts of Florida for the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the detachment consisting of Lieut. Julian S. Dexter, pilot and photographic officer, Master Sgt. Andrew Malos, photographer, and Pvt. Irving Kallmyer, mechanic.

They will fly a Loening amphibian plane, similar to those used on the Amazon River, and from Miami to the town of Everglades, the total area to be photographed being approximately 2,500 square miles. This will be done in six weeks.

The new army air corps four-lens mapping camera will be given its first extensive service test in the accomplishment of the project. Operating at an altitude of about two miles, the camera photographs at a scale of 1 to 10,000. Because of the inaccessibility of the area to be photographed, accurate data is not easily obtainable by a ground survey. Aerial photography of regions, such as the Florida Everglades, has provided information on sections entirely inaccessible to human beings.

Treaties With Spain And Germany Sought

(Associated Press.)

Negotiations for arbitration treaties with Germany and Spain, similar to that recently ratified with France, were begun yesterday when Secretary Kellogg handed draft treaties to the German and Spanish ambassadors.

Mr. Kellogg informed the German Ambassador the United States would be pleased to conclude also a conciliation treaty with Germany and submitted a proposed draft identical in effect with the Bryan conciliation treaties, a number of which are in force. By the same procedure, Norway recently was added to the list of nations with which this country hopes to conclude arbitration pacts.

Bill Would Add Two To Appellate Bench

A bill providing for the appointment of two additional associate justices of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Hickey (Republican), of Indiana.

Representative Hickey, who is a member of the House judiciary committee, declared that the three judges now in the Court of Appeals are being seriously overworked. They receive cases not only from the District Supreme Court but from the Police and Municipal courts. In addition, they get cases from the Board of Tax Appeals and cases dealing with the patent laws.

SENATE CONFIRMS GREEN FOR COURT OF CLAIMS

House Leader Wins Post as Judge Despite Opposition Because of Age.

HAWLEY TO SUCCEED HIM

The nomination of Representative William R. Green, of Iowa, to be a United States Court of Claims judge was confirmed last yesterday by the Senate.

Favorable action was taken in the Senate.

Senate after opposition had developed to Green's nomination chiefly on the ground that he is past the retirement age for Federal judges. The point also was made that his son holds a $10,000 a year position on the Board of Tax Appeals.

The nomination of the chairman of the House ways and means committee had been approved earlier in the day by the judiciary committee. His elevation to the bench means his retirement from the House, where he has served for many years as a member from the Ninth Iowa District.

Representative Hawley (Republican), Oregon, is in line for the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, which has jurisdiction over revenue and tariff legislation.

Hawthorne, Nev., Urged for Explosives

(Associated Press.)

Selection of Hawthorne, Nev., as a storage point for high explosive naval ammunition and the appropriation of approximately $5,000,000 to "correct" unsafe conditions at upward of a dozen existing storage depots was recommended to Congress yesterday by a joint Army and Navy board.

Holding that a Western depot was the "keystone of the proposed improvement" is nearly all naval ammunition depots," the board reported that the Hawthorne site had been selected over Secret Valley, Calif., because the character of the terrain was more suitable, and "meteorological conditions are as good if not better."

Adm. Jones Recalled To Duty as Advisor

Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired, 1868 Columbia road, who was one of the two American delegates to the three-power conference on disarmament at Geneva in 1927, was recalled to duty yesterday to become advisor on naval affairs to the conference of the preparatory commission on limitation and reduction of armaments at Geneva. It was announced at the Navy Department. He will sail Saturday or Sunday.

Rear Admiral Jones was originally named with Rear Admiral Andrew Long as advisor to the preparatory conference, but subsequently became ill. His condition is now improved sufficiently to permit his going. Rear Admiral Andrew Long, of the Navy general board, left ten days ago.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

A MUSICAL PRODUCTION MAKES A DECIDED HIT

"Good News," Taking Up
Quarters in Poli's for the Week, Goes Over Big.

A COLLEGIATE COMEDY

When the eminent Mr. Neman rapped has been for the overture of "Good News" at Poli's last night, and the synopsis of a very terrific orchestra began to send their several ways back as far as row D, there was anticipation in the heart of this reviewer, anticipation that the very smartest musical comedy of the season was presently to unfold itself for the cash customers. And after the festivities got under way the anticipation became actual—and the play was on.

"Good News"—which is all of that—comes to Washington by way of a Boston company, but the way it is presented (regardless of familiarity with the tunes) brings to happy realization that, at least, is a musical production destined to reap much honor after its original progenitors desert the music halls of Broadway.

The book of "Good News" is accredited to Laurence Schwab and E. G. DeSilva, whose efforts in this line have been given to fame before this late date, and the story tells a very wholesome sort of episode of American college life.

This collegiate comedy is true to the type of story—the hero is typical of Frank Merriwell, the heroine is the orthodox young lady whose future happiness depends on the outcome of a football game—and the characters woven into the tapestry of the play would be recognized on any campus. There is, of course, the professor, who is a notable tyrant; the young lady whom he has things sewed up pretty badly at the story's inception; the inevitable freshman who is properly timid—all in all a finely cast aggregation of young folks. With this array of puppets the authors have set themselves to the task of bringing to the stage a popular type of musical comedy—a transitory effort, at best, but one of noble proportions, while the Olsen boys are playing in the pit.

This company of "Good News" features a singing chorus or some attributes—especially in this true as concerns the male contingent. And the dancing ensembles are, in the main, above reproach, but the highly touted Glee Club trio must have been a total loss to the clients in the upper arena.

It is doubtful if a musical comedy of this, or of any season has as many "catch" songs to it as "Good News." The music has been made permanent by the discs and the old familiar melodies are sung with the utmost abandon (high in the ranks of the musical must be mentioned: "The Best Thing in Life," the well-known "Varsity Drag," "Lucky in Love," "Good News," and "Just Imagine"—all of them tuneful).

A cast of exceptional merit backs the local "Good News." Don Lanning gives a splendid impersonation of the college hero, Dolores Farris is an exceptional heroine, Claude Stroud and Marie Callahan carry a big assignment in comedy and terpsichore. William Wayne is, for the most part, a delightful foil for the heavy work of Don Rowan, and Frank McCormack and Theima White, a fresher, carries off some of the high applause of the show by reason of her dancing. Mildred Costello is cast as the vamp. Maurice Darcy and others of less import round out the cast.

George Olsen's music is in evidence throughout.

Strassburger's Radio Affidavit Is Rejected

Harrisburg, Pa., March 12 (A.P.).—The Dauphin County court today dismissed the petition of Ralph Beaver Strassburger, which sought to compel Charles Johnson, secretary of the Commonwealth, to accept his nomination as delegate at large to the Republican national convention.

The decision set at naught the efforts of the wealthy Norristown publisher to have his name placed on the ballot through court proceedings and the use of radio to transmit his signature and a power of attorney to sign his petitions from Europe to the United States.

Rev. Newell D. Hillis III, Daytona Beach, Fla., March 12 (A.P.).—The Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, actor emeritus of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, noted lecturer and author, is seriously ill at the Halifax District Hospital here, where he was taken after being stricken while aboard a train en route to Eustis, Fla., today.

Since the day William Shakespeare fashioned his comedy, "The Merchant of Venice," out of some previously published story having to do with the pound of flesh and the lady judge—whether it was the Italian story in the Pecore of Giovanni Fiorentino, matters not—actors who have a whiff at it attempt to individualize the role of Shylock, and, by some twist or turn, take the play out of any set channel. Thus, the Shylock of this man is an avaricious, mean, low-down scoundrel; of that man a kindly old usurer who wants only that he should have his money; and that because it is his just right and due. Without departing one iota from the text, changes are made, naturally, in the manner and method of portrayal. It has been so since the time of Richard Burbidge and it will be so even after George Arliss passes by. UNEMPLOYMENT FACTS.

Estimates placing unemployment in the United States at 4,000,000 persons have been picked "out of the air," according to James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, in a statement to The Post. Exact calculations already made by agents of the Department of Labor reveal a shrinkage of 80 per cent from surmises to facts. There is unemployment, Secretary Davis acknowledges, but as he points out there are 1,000,000 persons always idle in the United States, even when all industry is working at top speed. Seasonal demands have a tremendous influence upon the labor supply and today there are signs of recovery in several lines which have not been active.

One point which Secretary Davis makes can not be overlooked. The development of new industries in recent years has been phenomenal. Millions of men are engaged in the manufacture of automobiles, radios and chemicals for whom there would have been no room at the opening of the present century. There are others, such as aviation, just coming to the front.

It appears to be evident, therefore, that the threat of an unemployment crisis was uttered more in politics than in earnest. Detailed examination will reveal no such ailment as the first calamity howl would have indicated. In any event matters can not be helped by what Mr. Davis terms "wild and harmful guesses." Predicting hard times is one way of obtaining them.

WALTER JOHNSON.

There has been one great deficiency in the training camp news from Tampa this year. It has been well enough to read of Bucky Harris, George Sisler, Sam Rice, Goose Goslin, Joe Judge, and all the rest of the men fighting for places on the Washington team, but baseball enthusiasts have longed for some word of Walter Johnson. During two decades the gossip and the speculation from the Washington training camp centered almost exclusively around Walter. If the "Big Train" or "Old Master" was due for another big year, Washington stock was up. If there was any reason to believe that he was in a slump, the outlook was dark.

The deficiency has been met by an interesting account from St. Augustine dealing with Walter Johnson and the Newark Club, which he is now managing. The prospects are that the team which Walter is going to manage will have a good season. The Washington veteran acknowledged that much and the fact that his team held the New York Giants to a tie on the same day that the statement was made indicates that there is justification for his optimism.

The qualities necessary for leadership are strong in Walter Johnson. It would take, as his players say, a rather small spirit to deny the new manager the best services possible. Johnson in his twenty years in the major leagues always gave everything that he had to the game. He has a right to expect that his players will do as much for him. They say that they will, and if they do, few minor league ball clubs will rank with Newark.

Johnson's new club certainly has the hearty endorsement of his Washington admirers in any claim that it may make for the International League pennant. There are likely to be a good many days this summer when the stands in Baltimore will have their quota of Washingtonians present for the Newark games. This will certainly be true on those days when Johnson takes the box himself, as he announces he intends to do at intervals. The sight of Johnson in the box with a minor league club may make some of his old admirers rub their eyes, but the strain upon the spectators will not be half as severe as it will upon the opposing players. As long as Johnson is able to throw the ball across the plate he will remain a pitcher that batters would rather talk about than face.

MOTOR CAR DEATHS.

During the four weeks ended February 25, 1928, automobile accidents were responsible for 510 deaths in 77 large cities of the United States. This is an increase of 69 deaths over a period of four weeks ended February 26, 1927. All but 60 of these deaths resulted from accidents within the city limits.

Taking four-week periods since May, 1925, the total toll of deaths from automobile accidents for 77 cities, regardless of place of accident, was 346 for the four-week period ended March 27, 1926, and the highest was 688 for the four-week period ended November 5, 1927. For the 52-week periods ended February 25, 1928, and February 26, 1927, the totals for the 77 cities were 7,196 and 6,740, respectively, which indicate a recent rate of 22.4 per 100,000 population as against an earlier rate of 21.3, or an increase of 5 per cent in the rate in a single year.

Washington had five deaths for the four weeks ended February 25, 1928, with two of them caused by accidents outside of the city limits. For the corresponding four weeks of 1927, ended February 26, the total number of deaths was twelve, with four due to accidents outside of Washington.

New York City had more deaths than any other of the 77 cities, with a total of 85 for the four-week period ended February 25, 1928, and 69 for the same period ended February 26, 1927. New York's death rate, caused by automobile accidents, for 52 weeks ended February 25, 1928, was 1,074. This was a decrease of 26 deaths over the corresponding 52 weeks of 1927.

Washington had a total of 104 deaths for the 52 weeks ended February 25, 1928, with 26 of the accidents occurring outside of the city limits. For the 52 weeks of 1927, ended February 26, there were 103 automobile fatalities in Washington, of which 30 were caused by accidents outside of the city. The death rate of automobile accidents in the District per 100,000 was 19.6 in 1927 to 19.3 in 1928.

EXTENDING CONTROL LIGHTS.

Installation of automatic traffic control in the congested area is an involved problem. It is apparent that ultimately some such system must be created. Other cities, as their traffic has approached the saturation point, have found in automatic light control the only workable relief, and it is reasonable to suppose that Washington will follow the general rule. It is apparent also that local traffic congestion is increasing. So far the police have been able to handle it reasonably well, but the time is not far distant when they will have to be provided with mechanical aid.

The several local thoroughfares under automatic control for some time do not provide parallel cases by which the efficacy of congested area installations may be measured. If conditions were in any way similar there would be no question regarding downtown installation, for the community has become convinced that the lights in Sixteenth street, Massachusetts and Rhode Island avenues are a good thing. Traffic in the congested area, however, is of slower speed than that in suburban thoroughfares. This creates a number of problems. In addition, downtown traffic has to contend with street cars and buses loading and unloading at intersections.

Traffic Director Harland has recommended modification of the proposed traffic light installation program to provide for a synchronized system on Thirteenth street between E street and Massachusetts avenue, and independent installations in the intersections of Sixth, Tenth and Thirteenth streets at F and G. These installations, according to Mr. Harland, would give traffic authorities an opportunity to study the effect of automatic signals in the congested area and at the same time enable them to determine a method of control for future extensions.

The time probably has arrived in which experimental installations of traffic lights in the downtown area is advisable. Sooner or later this step must be taken, and postponement of the day is apt to create an intolerable situation. Yet experimental installations of lights must be made with the greatest care and foresight. The public undoubtedly will not take kindly to the innovation at first. Possibly it will affect business on controlled streets adversely. At any rate, the traffic department should go about the project only after it has studied conditions elsewhere thoroughly enough to install a system that gives promise of working smoothly.

POTOMAC GORGE.

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission has formally approved a combined park and power development of the gorge of the Potomac. The resolution adopted expresses approval of the investigation now being conducted jointly by the Army Engineer's office and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission relative to the feasibility of such combined development. Action was taken as a result of recommendations made by J. Bond Smith, general counsel of the commission, and Robert B. Morse, chief engineer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, who have recently completed surveys of the project.

The most interesting element in the action lies in a report submitted by Mr. Morse in which he says that combined development of parks and power is not unfeasible from an engineering standpoint. Opposition to power development in the Potomac gorge has been centered principally in a belief that power and parks are incompatible. Mr. Morse is the first to report that both may be had without evil effect one upon the other.

The beauty of Potomac gorge should not be defiled. Standing today practically as nature originally made it, it presents a rare opportunity for development of a recreational area that undoubtedly would take its place among the famous parks of the world. Yet the volume of water flowing swiftly through the rapids and cascading over Great Falls has considerable economic value. Until recently the question has been, which will be of greater value to the community—park or power? Mr. Morse's report opens up new lines for investigation. Can parks and power be developed simultaneously, and if so is there economic justification for such development?

It is important to note that it has not yet been determined impartially that power development in the Potomac would be beneficial at the present time. There exists a decided opinion that the capital investment necessary to such a development would make economically impossible cheap power. This is a matter that can be decided more easily now, however, since the possibility of a combined park and power development has been suggested formally.

THE BODLEIAN LIBRARY.

The famous Bodleian Library is a sufferer from a plethora of books, and is in serious danger of being swamped. The congestion is due to the increase in printed books. In 1848 the library contained 220,000 volumes; in 1888, 440,000; and in the present year of grace, about 1,500,000. This immense gain in 80 years was caused chiefly by accessions under the copyright act. In 1887 these accessions were estimated at 5,000 volumes a year; at present, they are computed to be 20,000 a year. The result of the crowding that has been going on is to bring forward various suggestions for its relief, some of them drastic enough. One set of reformers would build a new Bodleian in another part of Oxford; another school of thinkers would preserve the existing Bodleian, but would erect a great storehouse at some distance to receive the new books; others, again, would build additions to the present library and, by the gain of shelf-space thus effected, would provide for new accessions for a long time to come. Nearly every one is agreed that Duke Humphrey's corridor, described as a masterpiece of grave and quiet beauty, with Bodley's chamber and Selden End attached, should be kept in use as a library.

A thoughtful number of scholars have transferred attention from the buildings to the books. They maintain that many books admitted under the copyright act are not worthy to be in the Bodleian and ought, therefore, to be discarded. In that way some 150,000 books might be got rid of. They maintain also that at least 20 per cent of the annual accretion might be dispensed with. The intake would thus be reduced by about 4,000 volumes a year. They meet the argument that the Bodleian Library is a national "library of deposits" by the statement that a library of deposit does not mean a book dump, and they contend that neither the Bodleian nor any of the four other libraries mentioned along with it in the copyright act is obliged to receive any book, that no penalty is imposed upon them for not accepting a book, and that it is only for the publisher who refuses to send a book that a penalty is provided. They quote Sir Thomas Bodley himself as being on their side when he said: "Take no risk-riff books, for such will but prove a discredit to our library."

The inscription on the Bodleian is: Vobis, academici, reipublicae litteratorum. (For you, college men, and for the republic of the learned). Therefore, scholars everywhere have a prime interest in the disposition to be made of one of the greatest and one of the finest libraries in the world.

WOMEN JOCKEYS.

Two great novelties from the Tia Juana race track were reported in yesterday's newspapers. In the first place, the results of eleven races were given. This surely must be about a record number for one track in one day. They were no slouches of races either, varying in distance from 6 furlongs to 2 1/4 miles and in value from $600 to $1,300. The eleven races attracted an aggregate of 102 horses to the starting gate, or an average of a little more than nine for each race. One of the contests, the Ventura handicap, run over a mile and a sixteenth, was made particularly remarkable by the fact that the outsider, Shasta Gold, led all the way from the start and won by a length and a half. Incidentally beating every favorite for the Cofroth handicap, except the prime favorite of all, Justice F., and he was not among the nine runners in the Ventura.

The second novelty, and a much more important one, for it may, perhaps, prove to be epoch-making, was a 6-furlong race, the Coronado town plate, exclusively for women riders. Here again there were nine runners, and here, too, a rank outsider was the first to come under the winning wire. The finish was a close one, as no more than a neck separated the second from the winner. The experts on the spot were all agreed that the race was admirably ridden, Ruth Parton on the second horse, Hominy, putting up "a finish that many a boy would be proud of," while the winner, Holly Boy, was piloted "with excellent judgment by Ardeth Schneider."

More and more are women encroaching on what used to be man's exclusive domain. Riding in horse races was one of the callings that seemed to be fairly safe from invasion. The tragic fate that befell Kingsley's Loraine Lorie, when, in the steeplechase in which, sorely against her will, she took part, the vicious horse she bestrode "killed her at the brook, the brute, for all the world to see," has been doubtless something of a deterrent. There are, however, recent isolated instances recorded of English women and Irish women riding in horse races.

FORD'S AIR PLANS.

Edsel Ford in a newspaper interview has divulged the fact that he and his father, as private individuals, are investigating metal dirigibles and their possible use for trans-oceanic passenger service. The ships the Fords have in mind would be absolutely fireproof and would be much bigger than any that have been built thus far.

The story catches the fancy because the Ford interests have been uniformly successful in everything they have adopted. There are numerous uses to which the dirigible ultimately will be put. Several organizations are experimenting with lighter-than-air craft at the present time, and it seems likely that sooner or later the dirigible will undergo a period of spectacular development second only to that experienced by the airplane. The Fords may well play an important part in such development. Experimentation with dirigibles is an expensive undertaking. The Fords control vast resources.

Interest in this phase of the interview has served to divert attention from another element of it. The company intends to build two-seater airplanes of safe and stable construction intended primarily as training planes. These planes will not use the circular motor but will be powered with a four-cylinder air-cooled engine of about 80 horsepower, the cylinders placed in opposite pairs so that they will balance, an important feature in the elimination of vibration.

Some 65 per cent of the planes produced last year for commercial use were powered with the OX5 engine, the designation of the Curtiss water-cooled 90-horsepower motor that was produced in quantity during the war. When the armistice was signed 17,000 OX5s were in storage. The Government sold them cheap—far cheaper than their cost. Consequently the OX5 has been the standard engine for low and medium price planes, and has made it possible to sell airplanes for as little as $2,500. The supply of OX5s, however, will be exhausted probably by the end of this month, and the engine shortage threatens to slow down the airplane industry.

Although nine manufacturers are producing airplane engines in the United States there is a dearth of low-price engines, for which there seems certain to be a great demand before many more months. The interview may indicate that this is a field that the Ford interests are about to enter, with a four-cylinder, 80-horsepower motor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Libel on Chicago.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your cartoon, "I Will," recently reproduced in the Chicago Tribune, is a libel on Chicago's fair name. Chicago gunmen do not use the old-fashioned, out-of-date revolvers shown in that picture, but their artillery consists of the latest model automatics and machine guns, and when better equipment is made, our gunmen will be supplied first.

If your cartoonist is in doubt about this, let him wander down one of our main thoroughfares after dusk, but I advise him to bring his cyclone cellar with him. The bootleggers and highjackers now are fighting. With machine guns and sawed-off squinting lead. So it's time to slip into your cyclone cellar. And pull the hole down in upon your head. GYM.

Government Annuities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A criticism has just appeared in The Post, signed by Samuel Blumenthal, against my views, recently published in your paper, regarding the possibility of a double annuity going to the homes from which both husband and wife are in the Federal civil service. In his letter Mr. Blumenthal politely questions my familiarity with the civil service law and my inferred result of a "little figuring," but silently admits the justice of my plea.

To help my critic in figuring let us suppose that a man and his wife both enter the civil service, each at a salary of $1,600, which is continued to them for 30 years. During that period of time the Government retains 3 1/2 per cent of the salary of each, which amounts in each case to $56 each year, or $1,680 in 30 years. They both retire, each on an annuity of $1,200. In 1 year, 4 months and 24 days they receive all that was taken from their salaries, and thereafter, during the rest of their natural lives, $2,400 goes to them from a fund contributed by those still on active duty.

From a neighboring home the head of the family enters the civil service at a salary of $1,600, which is continued to him for 30 years, and from which $1,680 goes into the retirement fund. He then retires at an annuity of $1,200. He recovers all of his deductions from the annuity fund in 1 year, 4 months and 24 days, after which only one annuity of $1,200 goes into his worthy home.

During active service $96,000 goes into the home of the twin, while only one-half that sum goes into the home of a neighbor just as meritorious. Twice as much money from the United States Treasury and twice as much from the annuity fund go into the home of the twin as go into the home of that worthy neighbor. When we consider the purpose that inspired the retirement law, the results indicated above appear intolerable. The retirement law was meant to express a charitable thought of the Nation—a beneficence to prevent the possible distress, humility and suffering of its faithful employees when stricken with old age. Favoritism was not contemplated.

My critic refers to marriage consummated in the service, but that would not figure in the matter under discussion. May it not be possible that in such marriages the thought of a double annuity is an urgent factor? In these latter days Cupid seems to have acquired a strong eye for financial outlook. In all matters I have a strong feeling for human justice and the square deal. In mentioning the matter of double annuities, I, of course, expected the pinch would be felt by those touched, but I am gratified by the voice of approval that has come to me. On the ground of the sage maxim that "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure," I believe that the best way to prevent the injustice of which I speak is to stop admitting husbands and their wives into

Mail Robbers

By HARRY S. NEW,
Postmaster General.

I HAVE been quoted as advocating the death penalty for every man who attempts to rob the mails. I didn't say exactly that, but what I have in mind is the imposition of greater and more certain penalties for the offense of mail robbery.

In England and in Canada, the man who attacks the King's mail with arms is subject to the death penalty and in the rare instances where such robberies occur that penalty is usually inflicted. For that, or some other reason, the instances are few.

Postal employees, and particularly mail clerks, have really little chance to defend themselves against attack. Take, for instance, the robbery in Chicago two weeks ago. The bandits simply tied their "pineapple" on the outer knob of the iron door of the mail car, lit the fuse and retired to a safe distance. The discharge blew the door practically through the car, desperately injuring one clerk and less seriously injuring the other, but singularly destroying his revolver. Look at the d'Auermont case in Oregon. The bandits and mail clerk never even saw each other. The former merely placed a bomb under the mail car and blew it up, destroying the clerk together with the contents of the car. All that was ever found of that poor devil was a section of his spine. He was absolutely without a chance to defend himself. The same was true in the robbery of the mail truck at Elizabeth, N. J., where the unsuspecting bandits drove an automobile in front of the truck and shot the driver and the guard from their seats without a word of warning. The Postoffice Department couldn't even prosecute these men in the Federal courts when we caught them.

The sanctity of the United States mails and the lives of the men who are charged with that responsibility by the Government should be safeguarded by every known means and the punishment for their violation made sufficient to fit the crime. I do not know that I am much of an advocate of the death penalty as a rule, but I do think that judges should be given latitude to impose it where the circumstances seem to call for it, as in the instances cited, and many others like them. The United States mails should be safeguarded in every possible way and no precaution or no penalty omitted that will tend to make them safe from attack. The Government makes it obligatory upon those in charge of the mails to defend them with their lives and they are in turn entitled to all the protection that the Government can give them.

Service that Leads to such Injustice.

Since the plea for a higher annuity to those getting the higher salaries is based on the fact that they contribute more to the annuity fund, it must be remembered that the high-salaried employee is more able to contribute to such fund and has more money left after making his contribution. If at retirement the high-salaried should elect to choose the amount retained from his salary in lieu of the annuity checks, the officials handling the annuity fund would doubtless gladly meet such an offer. JOHN R. WEATHERS.

The Campaign Is On!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now we know that a presidential campaign is actually on, that the cohorts are assembling. Senator Borah has sounded the keynote, blown one blast on his bugle horn. Once again we have heard the old familiar slogan—"Down with the bosses!" We were waiting for that cry; we couldn't get our fighting courage up without that slogan.

Now let some one shout against the iniquities of "big business," and some other kind friend of the people cry out against "the machine," and we will be truly happy. Then we shall devote our time and thoughts to making a righteous choice of a tenant for that old-fashioned but popular private hostelry on Pennsylvania Avenue.

A sober look at the primary system of making nominations will convince the looker-on that the good people really care very little as to who is nominated. Less than 30 per cent of the voters attend primary elections, and they divide, sometimes very closely. Have we improved the class of office-holders? Since the system was adopted one governor of a State has been impeached and turned out of office; one governor has been convicted of crime and served a term in prison; an attempt has been made to impeach another governor for misdemeanors in office, and still another has been charged with attempted bribery. All these were nominated at primaries. History shows nothing like it under the old convention system, when, it is charged, the bosses reigned. ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

Going Too Far.

Philadelphia Ledger: Sentimental Americans who sympathize with the Nicaraguan outlaw Sandino are preparing to do something more than sympathize. Under the guise of sending him "medical supplies," they have opened a drive in this country for aid of a material nature. This seems to be going a little too far. Americans have a right to oppose and criticize the Government's Nicaraguan policy. They have a right to lay their case before the country, before Congress and before the administration. But here is a situation in which marines are killing Sandinist outlaws and Sandinist outlaws are killing marines. In giving material aid to one side or the other, it is necessary to choose which should be killed. It is unthinkable that an American should decide against the soldiers of his own country when it comes to the necessity of drawing this line. But this is what these Americans are doing when they give material aid and comfort to the Sandino forces.

Frederic Fradkin, the concert violinist, will be the principal attraction of a program of melodious classic music which will be given by "Eveready Hour" at 9 o'clock this evening.
Mr. Fradkin, born at Troy, N. Y., of Russian-American parentage, has had a notable career as a concert master. He has been concert master at Monte Carlo and Vienna and was concert master of the Russian Symphony Orchestra and the Diaghilev Ballet in New York, and of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He has toured extensively in this country and abroad.

"Power and the Public," a subject of absorbing interest in this presidential campaign year, is to be the topic of the Voter's Service at 7 o'clock from WRC.

A program of Oriental music will be offered by the Sibelius Singers, under the direction of James Melton, at 8 o'clock, after which the radio audience will find "Cotton and the Mopius" in the role of porters on the pier where an ocean liner is docked.

A Lenten Bible study hour will be conducted by Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church broadcast from the Hotel Mayflower, at 11:30 o'clock this morning. This program will be followed by the noonday Lenten services from Keith's, with an address by Bishop W. F. McDowell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. A concert by the United States Navy Band Orchestra will be broadcast at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Station WMAL will present its Tuesday Radio Movie Club at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

Power Plant Blast Death Held Accident

A verdict of accidental death was brought in by a coroner's jury investigating the explosion at the Department of Agriculture power house, Friday night, which cost the life of George Henning, 63 years old, 943 Virginia avenue southwest. Causes of the blast were not determined, although several members of the engineering staff were questioned.

The jury also decided that accidental causes led to the death of Frank McGann, of Walter Reed Hospital, who fell to the sidewalk in front of 2474 Eighteenth street northwest last Tuesday, fracturing his skull.
Lytle Chaffin, 26, 1311 L street northwest, who hung himself in the First Precinct police station, after being arrested on charges of intoxication and solicitation of aims, was declared a suicide by the jury.

Kotex Reduces Prices

A few months ago, as a means of winning a million new users for Kotex, we made a special offer of one box of Kotex free with every two boxes purchased for 98c. This sale is now ended.

So overwhelming was the response to this offer that we doubled our output and are thereby now able to announce a permanent 30% reduction in the regular price of Kotex when sold by the box.

These two exclusive new features have doubled Kotex sales:

- 1 A new, form-fitting shape . . . corners are now scientifically rounded and tapered so that you wear it under the most clinging gowns without possibility of detection, without marring smooth, fashionable lines.
- 2 It is softer, too—fluffier—eliminating unpleasant chafing and binding.

& . . . RETAINING ALL THE FEATURES AND PROTECTION OF THE KOTEX YOU HAVE ALWAYS KNOWN.

TO meet the immediate and overwhelming response of women to the two exclusive new features of Kotex we have been obliged to double our manufacturing facilities.

This fact and the introduction in our plants of our new, patented machinery enables us to announce, effective today, a reduction of 30% in the regular price at which Kotex will be sold to all drug and dry goods stores.

Before making a permanent reduction in price, and as a means of getting nation-wide distribution of the Improved Kotex, for several months we made a special offer of 2 boxes of Kotex at 98c and one box free.

Now with the assurance of a doubled volume at lower prices, the regular price of single packages of Kotex is reduced 30%. Without this doubled volume the Improved Kotex would have to be sold at higher rather than lower prices.

RARELY is a manufacturer able to offer better goods and lower prices at the same time.

Two years of exacting work in our laboratories by designers and chemists (in cooperation with women doctors) led to the perfection of the Improved Kotex.

With the presentation of the new style Kotex, exclusive in design, comes the most radical development in intimate feminine hygiene since the invention of Kotex itself. The features we have developed are exclusive to Kotex—are found in no other sanitary pad.

You can wear the new Kotex without self-consciousness no matter how close fitting your gown, how thin and clinging its fabric.

What form-fitting means

By a unique process, developed only after months of experiment, corners are now scientifically rounded and tapered so that the pad fits snugly, comfortably, securely. Closest-fitting gowns will retain their slim, smooth lines.

This brings a composure, a sense of well-being, heretofore impossible.

Softer—fluffier—chafing eliminated

Now, exclusive methods have been found for making the absorbent filler still softer. Chafing, binding, similar discomforts are eliminated.

Utmost protection is afforded delicate sensitive skin. The importance of such an improvement cannot be exaggerated.

The Improved Kotex retains all the advantages of the old Kotex, including the same area of effective absorbent surface you have always known.

27 women doctors, 83 nurses cooperated enthusiastically

During the past two years 27 women doctors, 83 nurses in leading hospitals, in City Health Departments, in Welfare Departments, were consulted. Six specialists in feminine hygiene suggested and approved ideas.

Each detail was supervised by scientists who know your problems not only professionally but also from a woman's point of view. Their enthusiastic approval is the most important endorsement of the Improved Kotex.

All former advantages retained

The remarkably absorbent powers of Kotex remain; the same protective area is there. Cellulocotton wadding which fills Kotex and which is exclusive to Kotex has all the advantages of any waterproofed absorbent, plus its own unique qualities. It is 5 times more absorbent than cotton. It discards like tissue—you simply follow directions in each box; it deodorizes thoroughly while being worn.

Today—the new prices are in effect. A continued low price depends upon double volume production. We have built new plants, constructed expensive new machinery on a double scale, anticipating that your approval and enthusiasm would match ours.

You buy Kotex by name, without embarrassment, without delay . . . it comes in two sizes, Regular and Kotex-Super.

Kotex features are exclusive

These new features will be found in Kotex, and in Kotex only. Nothing else is remotely like it. Buy a box today to learn our latest and greatest contribution to woman's hygienic comfort. Kotex Company, 180 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

THE BATTLE SONG OF THE CITIES

There is an old song which might well be adapted as the battle song of city people. It begins with the phrase, "Let a little sunshine in," a cry re-echoed by all those who must endure the fumes of smoked-filled towns.

As long as stacks belch forth black clouds so we condemn our children to lungs of ebony hue, with throats and nasal passages properly irritated to make easy the entrance of the germs of dread diseases.

So long as the smoke pall cuts the winter sunlight to a wan gleam at mid-day, that long will human health and efficiency be lowered, that long will the costs of living and of doing business be far higher than necessary and the beauty of our cities be defaced.

Every method of smoke prevention is to be commended. Easiest of the ways to prevent smoke is the burning of a sootless and smokeless fuel.

Reading Anthracite of 1928, sootless, smokeless and long-burning, keeps your city clean while heating you satisfactorily. Your dealer has it or can get it.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertinent to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HEARTS AND THE STRAIN OF ATHLETICS.

THE normal man can indulge in noncompetitive athletics for pleasure without endangering his heart—in fact, with advantage to that organ. On the other hand, the man who takes part in major competitions should have his heart examined before he begins and periodically thereafter.

These statements are from a book, "Heart and Athletics," written by Drs. Felix Deutsch and Emil Kauf, of Vienna. In that city all the swimming and boxing organizations unite in maintaining a series of heart stations. All persons who belong to these stations must undergo one of several physical examinations. Dr. Deutsch and Kauf gained the facts and opinions which they set forth by means of work done in these stations.

Examining the heart is done by means of a special X-ray examination. For the results to be of value the X-ray picture must be taken in just exactly the right way. They have not found examination of the heart by ordinary methods, using the stethoscope, to be of any great value in making this examination.

A few applicants for permission to train as professional athletes to engage in major competitions are rejected. In the main, however, they give a man a permit to train under medical observation. Every one is required to be reexamined once a year, but these special permit men are examined much more frequently than that.

If the heart is found to be enlarged the athlete is called back at the end of a month for an examination to determine how fast the enlargement is progressing. As the result of subsequent examinations the athlete may increase his work, or he may change it or lessen it, or stop for a rest period of a month or more.

Among their conclusions are: The hearts of adolescents and young people generally stand up better under the strain of hard competition than do the organs of older persons. Excitement, mental strain, and emotional outbursts are more harmful to the heart than is the physical work. Some nervous athletes should be prohibited from competing. However, the rule is that nervous athletes, properly controlled, improve under competitive tests.

Among grueling competitions the three worst forms are rowing, bicycling, and skiing. At the other end of the list are boxing, soccer, football, and fencing. Between these extremes are swimming, hiking, light and heavy athletics. Tennis is counted as light athletics. So is handball. Weight lifting, wrestling, and professional strong man stunts are types of heavy athletics. There is no report on American football or prize fighting.

ALUMINUM UTENSILS.

L. P. B. writes: I recently read an article by a rather prominent authority, supposedly in which he condemns the use of aluminum cooking utensils. He goes into detail to tell of the various chemical compounds produced by the action of various foods on the metal. He contends that a great share of the stomach ulcers, tumors and even cancers are caused directly or indirectly by the eating of foods cooked in aluminum vessels.

In view of the general interest of the public in the matter, I shall be grateful for an answer to this in your column.

REPLY.

Some of these undercover propaganda people have succeeded in capturing your attention. I wish the government could force these contending interests to hire a hall and fight their battle out and stop frightening the people. Of course, this battle arena should be in the desert of Sahara, with radios and reporters barred.

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

DEAR VIOLA PARIS: I feel it such a handicap to be small that, if you could tell me how to add a few inches to my height, I would be the happiest person in the world.

P. M. P.

Answer—You needn't feel so discouraged about your height. A small girl has many advantages if she will make use of them. Study your type and dress as well as you know how. The following stretching exercises will, no doubt, show gratifying results if done religiously. In the morning, before you dress, stretch out flat on the floor, gauging your distance by stretching your arms as far above your head as possible. Place a book or any other object about 12 inches farther than your finger tips reach. Lie down again and with your feet locked under some piece of furniture try to reach the object. Arm-swinging movements, in which you are conscious of a distinct pull, are also excellent.

Shortly and Julie: Since you, too, envy the tall in stature, your answer is above.

Dear Viola Paris: Would arch supporters help correct fallen arches? Can you give me any exercises for strengthening the arches? What causes perspiration of the hands and feet? What can I do for this tendency? My hair is coarse and dry and broken. Is there any tonic that will give it a sheen and luster?

PEARL D.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

Being a Sport.

DEAR Miss McDonald: Just a word about how much sporting blood some women possess. I lost my wife because I lost my job. Of course, her people had a lot to do with it—but even so—if a woman really cares for a fellow can she immediately decide that he is incompetent and a failure because he hits a run of hard luck?

I am better off now than I was when I married—in fact, I am better off than I ever hoped to be—but I haven't the girl I chose as the real pal. And I really think it was a question of what I called sporting blood.

I had been with the same concern for ten years, but they went broke, and I was out of business. I never had been taking on high-priced men. My wife's people seemed to feel that I should take any job that offered, but I could not consider myself under any obligation. My years of specializing made me an expert in my own line. So I hit the trail to look up other concerns in other towns where my experience would be appreciated. My wife refused to take a chance and went back to her people. They attempted to dictate to me what my line of action should be and I bitterly resented their interference. Finally, I left on bad terms with my wife as well as her folks.

It was a bad six months, but at last I was safely launched and I realized that I could not feel content without my wife. I wrote to her and received a curt reply telling me that when she said she was through she had meant it. That was just two years ago. She is now with her people, having obtained a divorce, and I am once more single, living that furnished-room-restaurant life you speak of. It's great, isn't it, for a man whose offense was that his firm went out of business? It never entered into any one of their heads that I could find another job! Every one of them just took it for granted that I was down and out and done for—past history and a back number! Talk about quitters! I'd be sweeping!

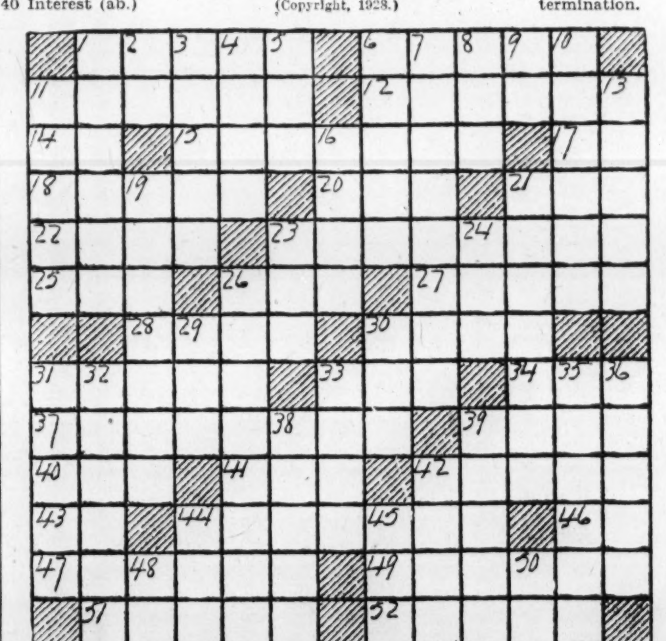

Hard to comprehend, Dert, but there always will be folks who will think of surrender before they think of fighting—and when a thing's worth fighting for it's hard to see some one else order a retreat. Better luck the next time—and more sporting blood!

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

QUESTIONS FROM "ANXIOUS."

LADY calling herself "Anxious" writes to make quite a number of inquiries, and the first is whether napkins are ever correctly placed on plates.

The answer is that they are always correctly placed on plates. Every well-set table for any meal, breakfast, luncheon or dinner, should have the napkins on the plates. The rule is: When service is restricted, when there is only one maid or more it may be necessary for household convenience to have first course of the meal already on the table, as, for instance, the orange (if oranges are eaten) at breakfast, the fruit cocktail at luncheon, and possibly oysters at dinner. In such cases the napkin is found on the left of the plate, though, correct, its place is upon it. The rule, however, is discarded for convenience in service.

The second question is about visiting. The lady wishes to know if it is proper for her to go to the house of another lady, who has not yet called upon her, to attend a club meeting. There is no reason why she should not, for a club meeting is more in the nature of a business than a merely social occasion. As one of a body of ladies she can go anywhere they do, if she pleases. Unless she has some special reason for thinking that her hostess does not wish to know her she should go as a matter of course and not consider herself under any obligation. Probably she will find that the unpaid visit was an oversight and that the lady is gracious and friendly quite unconscious of offense. Visiting is not seriously considered today. The third question is about prizes. Whether she should accept more than one at a party, and what she should say upon receiving one? Also, what should be said in presenting one. Prizes are no problem in the social world because it really doesn't have them. People play cards for small stakes. But if they did play for prizes they wouldn't worry a bit about taking any they won, because to refuse, or even hesitate, would seem to indicate that they questioned a decision which they should not question. There is no set form for presenting nor for receiving a prize. One is guided by the occasion in selecting appropriate remarks. "Thank you" is the simplest of replies, and something appreciative of the object might follow.

The Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

FIRST today shall we help a small girl to a much-loved delicacy? Dear Miss Carey: My little daughter is very fond of "apples on a stick," and I have searched almost everywhere for a recipe for the taffy which covers the apples, but thus far have been unable to locate a good one. Can you help me?

H. P.

Apples on a Stick. Make a syrup of one cupful of corn sirup or maple sirup mixed with one cupful of granulated sugar and boil these ingredients until they form a hard, brittle lump when dropped into cold water from the tip of a spoon. The lump must be brittle. Have ready about a dozen red, firm apples (twelve to this quantity of sirup) and remove the stems. Where the stem comes out force in the pointed end of a six-inch wooden skewer. The moment the brittle stage is reached by the boiling sirup, place the pan in another pan of boiling water, double-boiler fashion, and then, holding the skewers, dip each apple several times into the hot sirup until it is well coated. Place the apples, with the skewer sticking up straight, on a buttered slab or platter, and when thoroughly cool remove to a waxed paper. That is all—no particular trick, is there? But the sirup must be just right.

Mock Cherry Pie.

Pick over, wash and cut in halves one cupful of cranberries. Add one-half cupful of raisins seeded and cut in halves, three-quarters cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of melted butter and sprinkle over the mixture one tablespoonful of flour. Bake in a shallow pan for an hour, adding remaining liquid in which the meat was cooked, as it is necessary to keep the materials moist.

Cucumber and Onion Salad. Pare one generous sized cucumber. Slice it and allow it to stand in the ice box for several hours in a solution of salt and water to which a clove of garlic has been added. Chop a small onion to a pulp. Drain the water from the cucumber and remove the garlic. Chop the cucumber and mix with the onion. Add a small quantity of French dressing. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves and top with mayonnaise and paprika.

MODISH MITZI

Ah, Youth, Youth!

It must be the weather or something. Dad is feeling sentimental. He says goodbye to the three of them; and as he looks at them he thinks how lovely youth is and how beautiful they are—beautiful and young and slim. That's all we have to do with Dad for the moment. We'd like to mention that Mitzi's coat is black satin with a jabot collar combined with fitch, that Adelaide's coat has a cape and a collar of blue fox, that Polly's is belted and has a collar of otter, and that they all have extremely desirable hats. Mitzi's is two shades of silk, Adelaide's is the new shape that one wears on the back of the head, and Polly's still clings to earlaps, though it's mid-March.

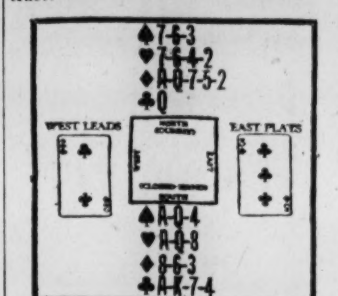

(All rights protected by the George Matthews Adams Service—Trade Mark Registered United States Patent Office.)

Mitzi is being very gentle with Dad. He seems to have had a shock. He keeps muttering: "Young and slim. Slim!" And refuses to explain himself. It's just as well. He is the newest coat silhouette, and one doesn't have to look slim any longer. One looks smart and that's enough. Polly's is tweed, Adelaide's is lightweight kasha, Mitzi's is silk—and they all flare widely from the shoulder to the hem. They are all wide. They are all loose. They all have sloping shoulders. One doesn't have to wear them. There are other smart coats—but, oh, for the lack of pounds that makes such daring possible!

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

THIS week we shall give three more illustrations of hands in which the Declarer may gain material advantage by planning his campaign as soon as the Dummy is exposed. How should the Declarer plan to play today's hand, with a No Trump contract?

Declarer sees three sure tricks in Clubs and three more with his tricker Aces. Three more (odd) tricks may come could be acquired by finessing Queens if every finesse won; but an attempt to establish Dummy's long Diamonds is more apt to succeed, odds being very long against finding all three Kings on the right of the Aces. If four Diamond tricks can be made, Declarer need not try either Major finesse; if three can be made, only one of those finesses need be successful. It is perfectly obvious that South should not try to establish Diamonds, but all letters will be established if both adversaries have followed to both Diamond tricks.

Major finesse: if three can be made, only one of those finesses need be successful. It is perfectly obvious that South should not try to establish Diamonds, but all letters will be established if both adversaries have followed to both Diamond tricks.

Selling Something to Some One.

WE are all salesmen. The newlywed tries to sell hubby her first effort with biscuits. The boy tries to sell his front porch affection to his girl. The mother works to sell character to her daughter. The husband sells his undying love.

But sellers run up against buyers. So do fathers, mothers, pupils, boy friends, girl friends, sweethearts, and all possible purchasers. To sell well one must know his buyer. Forced sales by means of intimidation or undue pressure are never satisfactory whether they concern selling ideas to children or shoes to mothers or kisses to sweethearts.

Whether we are selling soap or slush, canned goods or ideas, brains or bunk, we need to know something of the will to buy.

Buyers have been classified as those who (1) want a definite article, (2) want some sort of article, (3) want to spend something, (4) are not unwilling to buy, (5) are unwilling to buy.

The first kind want what they want. They ask for certain kind of soap or education or mark of affection or pan of biscuits. These are habit-protected folks and are extremely difficult to influence. They know what they want and they are going to have it. They make lifelong customers.

Next come those who want some sort of article, but as yet only indefinite ideas as to means of satisfying them. They want affection or education or stove polish or automobile or sweethearts and the best salesman decides the quality and quantity. Such buyers may eventually form fixed buying habits or they may remain indefinite to the end. If a teacher is a good salesman she can sell such type of buyer a course in Latin or algebra or history. If the boy is a good front porch salesman he can persuade the indecisive girl to give him a good night kiss. If the mother is a better salesman than the doorman youth she can sell her ideas of what is right and beat the smart Aleck of the doorstep. In every case the aim of the salesman is to give precision to the indefinite want. In other words to close the deal.

Thirdly, we have those with something to spend. It may be money, time, effort, love or ambition. To them there is a pleasure in spending. And a good salesman has little more to do than to make an offer to secure a response. The salesman has a cinch. A teacher who gets hold of a student who has ambition to spend has an easy task. A boy who makes a primrose path girl needs little salesmanship. A daughter with love to spend for her mother makes home life easy for that mother. In a group it's the buyers who must be careful. Gullibility is their weakness.

Fourthly, come those not unwilling to buy, but who lack the means. They have no felt need of the goods you would

KINKED IS KILLED IN "WONDER" PLANE

and it was then doubtful whether he would make the attempt, but toward 4 o'clock the storm passed away and the sun came out, and conditions seemed favorable.

Official timekeepers from the Royal Aero Club were present and everything was in readiness for what was expected to be a triumph of British airmanship. The sky was a pale blue, but with the setting sun visibility was not at its best. The machine was like a milk pound.

Kinked, undecided, paced up and down, watching the horizon and conversing with the officials. Then he made a lightning decision and asked Commander Perrin of the Aero Club to instruct the timekeepers to take their positions.

The machine was brought out and the engine warmed up, but Kinked seemed to find difficulty in rising. He had to taxi a full mile and a half before taking off. Then he sighted near the Calshot Lightship. He rose again apparently for the record flight, when disaster overtook him.

It was difficult to realize what exactly had happened, but it sounded as if he had opened the engine all out, and almost at once was diving absolutely vertically into the water. A cry of alarm went up. "He is down!" was shouted, and for a few seconds everyone seemed dazed. Then began a rush to summon the launches, but their search was in vain.

An airfield official remarked: "It is hopeless. I don't think any more will be done until morning when airplanes will be sent to look for wreckage."

Lieut. Kinked was a South African, born in 1907. He was educated at Johannesburg and saw flying service in the war in the Dardanelles for a year and in the Dunkirk area in 1917-18. He was the recipient of many decorations for conspicuous gallantry in the war.

Plane Built in Secrecy.

Development of the supermarine Napier S-3 in England was surrounded with the greatest secrecy during the preliminary training for last year's Schneider Cup races. The plane, a monoplane, is a development of the Napier S-4 which won the world speed record at the Schneider Cup in 1922.

Seven "hush hush" seaplanes as they were dubbed by the public were constructed under the greatest secrecy and three of them, one of which Lieut. Kinked piloted, were used at Venice.

The plane is of the smallest type ever seen in England, smaller even than the moth light airplane and are so constructed that the cockpit fits the pilots' bodies like gloves. The machine is built on the same stream line as a racing motor car and in the air looks like a flying fish.

The skirt has the tight hip line that is one of the features of the smart new mode. A band is formed by eight evenly spaced hand-made darts. A soft, flowing effect, without which a chiffon frock loses its charm, is created by a cascade at the left side. This cascade falls quite low and forms the un-even hemline that has become an essential feature of the evening mode.

This particular frock is of eggshell white chiffon. It is accompanied by very sheer black stocking and eggshell white satin slippers. The chain that the lady handles so gracefully is of crystal and from it hangs a beautiful oblong crystal pendant.

The disturbance that was centered near Cape Hatteras Sunday night has moved northeastward to the Eastern Maine coast. Eastport 28.8 inches. It was attended by rains along the Atlantic Coast. The Western disturbance has advanced slowly eastward, and is in the form of a trough extending from Minnesota and Wisconsin southwardward to Texas and New Mexico, with pressure 29.50 inches or slightly lower from Duluth, Minn., to Chicago, Ill. This disturbance has caused rains from the North Pacific States eastward over the plateau and mountain regions and in Iowa and Southern Minnesota and across in North Dakota, Northern Minnesota and portions of the Canadian Northwest. Pressure is relatively high over the northern plateau region, and the Atlantic States and from Eastern Newfoundland southwestward over the ocean to Porto Rico. The weather has become warmer from the Mississippi Valley eastward to the Atlantic Coast, and the temperature is now considerably above normal almost generally over the eastern half of the United States. The temperature has fallen, however, in the Plains States and the Rocky Mountain region.
The Western disturbance will move rather slowly east-northeastward during the next two days, and will be followed by further rain and temperature throughout the Eastern and South Atlantic States. The weather will become cooler by Wednesday night. The temperature will be below normal by Wednesday night and the weather will be cooler during Wednesday night or Thursday.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

Looking through the motion picture magazines of a dozen years or so ago—and there were not so many then as there are now—one is reminded that motion picture trade marks are as transitory as the face of the average film star. Only a small pinch—not nearly a handful—of the producing company names which formerly flashed before the eyes of the spectator before the first scene of the drama reached the screen, still flicker where the fans can see them.

Essanay, Selig, Vitagraph, Nestor, Biograph, Triangle, Artcraft, L-Ko, Kalen, Bluebird, Thanhouser, Solmick, Equitable, Select, Edison, Horsley and a score of other, once well known and popular—where are they? In 1916 they were still going strong. Many of the men who sponsored them to this day remain in pictures, some in positions of vast power; but the old trade mark names have gone into the permanent fadeout completely, and by many, no doubt, are wholly forgotten, like the popular 5-cent cigars of 1898.

The change in the ranks of the players, of course, strikes the casual eye with more emphasis. Names like Tom Mix and Charlie Chaplin appear among a multitude of others, which seem to have been, judging from the producers' announcements of forthcoming releases, equally important at the time. But let some film fan, with what he thinks is a perfect memory, identify Ethel Teare, Curtis Cooksey, Darwin Carr, Flora Parker, Helen Gibson, Grace Williams, Elizabeth Burbridge, Frank Daniels, Belle Bruce, Rosetta Brice, Katherine Kaelred, Lizette Thorns, Alexander Gaden, Ollie Kirby, Marin Sais. All were featured as late as 1916.

Sometimes, however, even a good fan memory is fooled. Six years ago a young fellow named Samanios played a fair part with Lewis S. Stone in "The Prisoner of Zenda." Even if his name had been emblazoned on all the billboards, instead of merely being buried among the supporting players, few would recall it now for the very excellent reason that its owner, as soon as he could get around to it, changed it legally to Ramon Novarro!

But the old movie magazines can be relied upon for one thing in which they are not excelled even by the more ornate publications now cluttering up the more prominent of our news hutches—they all carry those magnificently inspirational articles, written in a majority of instances, by some one who knows no more about it than you do, bearing the intriguing title of "How to Get Into the Movies."

Read them all, then, nothing will remain to be done but try and get in!

It is, as you may have suspected in the more dubious of life's moments, a long hop from Alexandria, Va., a city of which you may have heard to Hollywood, Calif., another. Particularly is this so if one follows the devious path that leads through Army, newspaperdom and the stage. E. H. Calvert, native Alexandrian, has made the jump and accomplished a successful and happy landing.

Calvert was born in Alexandria and graduated from West Point. After an Army career that included service in the Great War and in two other less important campaigns, he returned to civil life, tried newspaper work and stage acting, and then went to the West Coast and pictures, wherein he is climbing toward the top of the capable character types in filmdom, specializing in Army officers from captain to general, but giving also a most convincing representation of the seasoned, individualized civilian.

And what of it? Nothing whatever, except that E. H. Calvert is playing the part of the commandant of the flying corps known as "The Legion of the Condemned" at the Metropolitan in the picture of that name, and I thought perhaps his friends would like to know it and see what a perfect job he really can do.

And while the Metropolitan is in your mind, you will be interested to know that Alexander Podnos, successor to Daniel Breeskin as conductor, has developed that theater's orchestra into a genuine house asset. Nice work.

Sam Rubin, the cherubic publicist of the Loew's Palace of the cinema in the Capital, has plucked a prospective topic of discussion gently from my grasp and applied it specifically to one of the playhouses to which his promotional penchants are devoted, so, since it saves me work just as my spring fever is getting bad again, why not?

Judging from the articles which are lost at Loew's Palace Theater, according to Mr. Rubin, one may assume that Washington people are religious, thrifty, systematic, studious, perhaps a little vain and certainly very careless.

Among the articles waiting to be claimed by their owners at the Palace are the following: 8 Bibles, 3 spectacle cases, 8 letters, 4 bank books, 1 lexicon, 1 typewriter cleaning outfit, 1 insurance policy, 1 delineator pattern, 1 time book, 3 pocketbooks, 1 billfold, 1 comb, 9 scarfs, 1 sweater, 2 belts, 3 textbooks, 5 shoe buckles and a number of lesser articles, such as hat pins, keys, compacts, buttons, gloves, bracelets, earrings and other pieces of jewelry.

This is a condition that is not peculiar to the Palace. It exists in greater or less degree in every theater in the city and the amazing part of it all is that not one person in ten attempts to recover a lost article is able to give an accurate description of the object sought. That is why managers insist on receipt signatures, addresses, etc., when anything lost is restored to its supposedly rightful owner.

It is a fine tribute to the honesty of our citizens, too, that a surprisingly high percentage of all articles lost in the theaters are turned in to the managements without quibble, question or solicitation.

It may be true that that "song is ended," but its melody does assuredly linger on, and I am not laughing! Lawrence Downey, having graduated from the loudspeaker to the orchestra pit and stage as a singing principal, is scoring with the Irving Berlin ballad hit at the Fox this week, and around the corner, at the Earle, Arthur Ball—unless our reviewer got his names mixed—is doing the same.

Which is as it should be, for the song is worth it.

The Motion Picture Guild of the Little Theater goes to Europe for the greater part of its major features, and a recent announcement from the tiny house on Ninth street reveals many interesting and important acquisitions in several countries.

As this is written I have just returned from a private screening of one of them, "The Light of Asia," the story of Buddha, filmed in India and enacted entirely by princes and princesses of that mystic country of opulence and occultism.

It is not my purpose now to deal extensively upon the many glorious qualities of this superfilm that attempts no propaganda, but surpasses anything I have ever seen in the unexampled beauties of its natural settings, all caught by the camera on the exact scenes where the founder of the ancient faith lived in the sixth century B. C. I will merely say that I am still under its spell and am again convinced that those stories of real substance which are translated to the screen are better when interpreted by unknowns—even of foreign birth—than by familiar actors, immediately recognized as hired mimes.

What a penetrating light Cecil B. De Mille would have perceived if he might have viewed "The Light of Asia" before he ever seriously contemplated filming "The King of Kings."

there was nothing so good for congestion and colds as mustard. But the old-fashioned mustard plaster burned and blistered.

Musterole gives the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister.

It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Gently rub it in. See how quickly the pain disappears.

Try Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

RADIO JUMPS TO NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

BEARS SUFFER SEVERELY

Stock Dealings Set New High Record—Motors Slack—Pace.

BEARS SUFFER SEVERELY

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, March 12.—With speculation for the week unbridled and trading in the most enormous volume in the history of the New York Stock Exchange, the volume of the week was characterized by broadening demand and, at the same time, by a slackening of the pace in General Motors, a standing feature of recent sessions, and by a severe squeeze of the shorts in Radio Corporation stock.

The force of the continued movement easily swept into the discard the record for daily turnover which had stood unchanged since 3,785,700 shares changed hands on the big break of March 3, 1926. The day's turnover was 3,860,000 shares.

The widest scenes witnessed on the floor of the exchange since the days of the Stutz corner several years ago, accompanied by Allen A. Ryan, occurred when, accompanied by loud shouts and groans, Radio Corporation of America shares were bid up to 138 1/2, from 128 1/2, by a group of speculators.

Excitement in the market reached its highest pitch in the last half hour, when Radio Corporation of America shares were bid up to 138 1/2, from 128 1/2, by a group of speculators.

With Radio up 43 points since the low of last week, the stock was technically overbought. Inquiries, however, did not lead to light any interest in an official nature going on or anticipated into the trading in the stock. It was evident that quantities of the stock were available in the hands of high enough.

Meanwhile, U. S. Steel common succeeded General Motors as the feature among the more seasoned industrials, rising more than 4 points on a turnover of 96,700 shares and closing about a point under the best price at a net gain of 3 1/2 points.

A further advance in American Telephone stock today gave rise to speculation that the stock was being bought through an offering of rights. It is always a good rumor, but in the even numbered years it is better than even, especially in the spring or early summer. The physical details of the offering are always handled in the warm months and news of the issue comes out in May. Stock offerings are about the time of the year, the made of, now that the public understands that American Telephone is serious about its inflexible cash dividend.

Meanwhile, trading in the premier automobile issue, which occasioned much excitement by its performance last week, appeared to have dried up considerably, and the stock fluctuated within about a 2-point limit and closed a point net lower, with but 284,200 shares having changed hands during the day.

Emboldened by the success of operators working in radio pools, a dozen or more other leading industrial specialties made energetic drives, but the most interesting in a bad way and their success was in no wise indifferent. Among radio's running mates the principal gains included General Electric, 6 1/2 points; American Lined, 6 1/2; Western Union, 5 1/2; Baldwin, 6 1/2; International Harvester, 6 1/2; International Nickel, 6 1/2; Wright Aeroplane, 5 1/2; Woolworth, 4 1/2; Union Carbide, 4; and General Railway Signal, 4 1/2; International Match preferred, 4 1/2; and International Combustion, 4 1/2.

A secondary list of actively advancing stocks, in which net gains amounted to 3 points or so included Timken Rolling Bearings, U. S. Rubber first preferred, Curtiss Aero, American Machine & Foundry, Brunswick Balke Collender, Montgomery Ward, F. G. Shattuck and many more.

Rails participated more actively than in some time in the dealings, but gains in the carrier group were conservative. A number of the group were appreciated 2 1/2 points, and numerous others of the independent steels followed United States Steel upward. Most of the automobile issues, however, were strong, independently of the group leader, and Peckard distinguished itself with a 3 1/2-point net gain on heavy buying which carried it to a new summer high.

Efforts to start Steel toward higher levels at the outset encountered stubborn resistance from the bear element, which was destined to see its last big stand crushed before the end of the day. Forces on the constructive side of Steel would not be denied, however, and soon the electric line leader was back in its position in the van of the session. Its position there emphasized by the backwardness of General Motors.

No explanation was needed for the spectacular performance of General Electric, which started the day 3 1/2 points higher on a trade of 15,000 shares. The remarkable financial position of that company was sufficient to account for the belated upturn here. Wall Street again was given a good calling the fact that the company is the holder of a large block of Radio stock.

Curiously enough the day was the fortieth anniversary of the big blizzard of 1888 and the smallest trading day in exchange history. Then snow and updraft traffic caused greater concern, brokers' loans and conditions abbreviated the session to 2 1/2 hours and limited the attendance to about 40 members and transacted only 16,000 shares.

Raising of the demand money rate to 4 1/2 per cent on renewals was ignored today as a market factor, being recognized as a consequence of the approaching tax date.

The Canadian dollar was strong, with a 4-point rise, to 99.94, in a generally steady foreign exchange market. Sterling and guilders edged slightly, as did lire, but German, Norwegian and Danish rates were moderately higher and yen made an 8-point recovery. Japanese yen improved 4 points and Chinese rates moved upward even more substantially.

ATLANTA, March 12 (A.P.)—Rains over a widespread area of the Dixie major league training territory today brought "indoor baseball" to the fore, giving club officials an opportunity to talk things over, and allowing many of the players a day of rest.

At Clearwater and Orlando, Fla., respectively, officials of the Brooklyn and Cincinnati National League Clubs discussed angles of a possible, at which, if completed, would send Rube Bressler, veteran outfielder of the Reds, to the Robins. With President McDiarmid, of the Cincinnati Club, present, Red Leg officials at Orlando discussed in addition to Bressler's demands for release, the unsigned contracts of two holdout pitchers, Carl Mays and Pete Donohue. Bressler has been quoted as offering to buy his own release from Cincinnati. Meanwhile, Wilbert Robinson, Brooklyn manager, admitted at Clearwater that he would be glad to talk with Bressler about a Robin contract should he be released by the Red Legs.

At St. Petersburg, Col. Jake Rupert, Yankee owner, conferred with Walter Hoyt, holdout pitcher, concerning salary differences. Pepper drills and light fielding workouts constituted the day's work for those who braved the dampness.

The Yankees, Boston Nationals, Washington Senators, Cleveland Sox, the Phillies and Robins were handicapped by the inclement weather, although the Yankees and Braves went to a muddy field during the afternoon for an exhibition contest.

Ruffing, pitcher, was expected to be Manager Carrigan's Red Sox choice tomorrow in an exhibition game against the Buffalo Bisons.

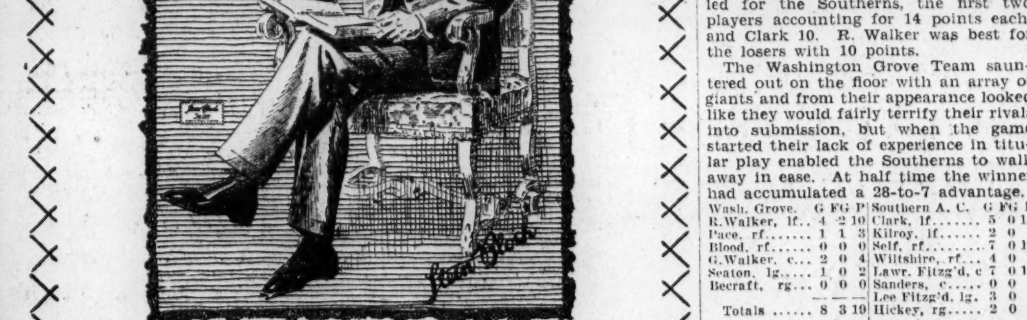

Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced at Fort Myers that his team would carry 25 players this season, including ten pitchers, three catchers, seven infielders and five outfielders.

Those not on the team last year to be retained are Leslie Bash and Oswald Carroll, pitchers; Hauser and Hassler, infielders, and Miller and Speaker, outfielders.

Jack and Frazet, joined the Philly squad at Winter Haven today.

The Chicago White Sox at Shreveport and the Cleveland Sox, Indians at New Orleans, had lengthy workouts today. Billy Evans is at New Orleans and expressed himself pleased with the club's prospects.

Manager Morarity began intensive training of the Detroit pitching candidates at San Antonio today, giving especial attention to the younger hurlers.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The big rain of Monday had little on the downpour which greeted the Nationals when they awoke this morning. The rain started in the wee small hours of the morning and literally came down in sheets. Shortly after 7 o'clock Trainer Mike Martin received a hurry call from the club house man to the effect that the locker room was being flooded and it took a large and hastily gathered force of men to prevent serious damage.

Anywhere else but Tampa practice would have been out of the question and the Nationals were forced to absorb much of the water as fast as it fell and early in the afternoon Manager Harris and his athletes held themselves to a light drill, during the closing period that action became furious with the Woodside team, of Silver Spring, had eliminated the Aces, 45 to 41, in a 145-pound class upset, and the Alexandria team, of Alexandria, Va., won from the Nationals, 28 to 27, in the 130-pound class. AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Clears the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and do so effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating. No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cured with a "dark brown taint," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad complexion or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

RADIO MEASURE PASSED BY HOUSE

York and other large cities was to be an alleged monopoly in the industry, which, they cited, consisted of the General Electric, the American Telephone & Telegraph, and Westinghouse Companies, and the Radio Corporation.

Other Changes Made.

In addition to the Davis proposal, two other changes to the Senate bill were proposed. They would provide for the reduction of the term of broadcasting licenses from six to three months and other stations from one year to six months, and elimination of a provision whereby the commission could be continued by appointment of its members.

The House, however, discarded by parliamentary maneuvering three other proposed amendments. One by LaGuardia sought to limit advertising over the radio to six minutes out of every hour another by Griffin (Democrat), New York, suggested equal allocation of stations by population "as far as practicable," while a third, by Celler, another New York Democrat, proposed that the Federal Government compensate any radio stations that might be closed up as a result of the Davis amendment.

Holds Cities Are Favored.

The main contention of proponents of the Davis amendment was that the present arrangement of broadcasting stations prevented development of the science and "infant industry" in other sections than the large centers of population. They claimed that the Radio Commission was inclined to consider more favorably the applications for power from the large cities than from the rural sections of the country.

Davis said that of the five broadcasting zones into which the country is divided, the first zone, including New York, New England and other North Atlantic States with a population of about 23,000,000, has a power allotment of 202,400 watts distributed among 95 stations. He said that the South, or third zone, with 26,000,000 population had 88 stations and 45,870 watts.

He asserted that New York received the "lion's share" of the power of the country, while the South and other sections had expressed their interest in the industry by making "two times as many applications for stations as New York." He also claimed that the "large stations operated by the radio monopoly had the best channels of the air" and "retrograde" or interfered with the smaller stations' programs.

Defended by Chairman White.

Chairman White of the merchant marine committee which handled the legislation, together with Davis, bore the brunt of the advocacy of the proposal. White argued that the existing system meant broadcasting service for one section alone and also stressed that the concentration of the power in the East placed "a major share of the Nation's facilities in the hands of the monopoly."

Clifford, of Massachusetts, and Clancy, of Michigan, two Republicans on the committee, opposed the amendment. Clancy declared that it would upset the existing system and asserted that the proposal was "wild and fantastic" and was given only hasty consideration without hearings by the committee. "Why not zone the newspaper circulation," he said, "if they are domiciled in the big cities surely they must be wicked and un-American."

Best Talent Offered by Large Cities.

Bloom and Boylan, two New York Democrats, argued for the large cities' stations, declared that they could give the country the "best musical talent and entertainment," whereas the smaller communities could not command noted performers.

Boylan said the "country expects the city to support farm relief, flood control and reclamation" and added that it was to the cities that the "country boys and girls came to make good on the theatrical and operatic stages."

While Southern Democrats lauded the work of Eugene O. Byrne, acting chairman of the commission, and criticized another commissioner, O. H. Caldwell, for favoring the large stations, Representative Crowder (Republican), New York, asserted that Byrnes knew "about as much about radio as the man in the moon." The New Yorker said that no curb should be placed in the issuance of licenses to amateur operators who render "valuable service in floods, earthquakes, fire and other disasters."

Interesting Animals.

VII. THE PORCUPINE ANT-EATER.

OF THE many strange forms of life on earth, the porcupine ant-eater is one of the strangest. It makes its chief home in Australia, but has relatives on the islands of Tasmania and New Guinea.

A Porcupine Ant-Eater.

The porcupine ant-eater is an ant-eater sure enough. It gobbles up ants by the dozen, using its long sticky tongue for the purpose. It has no teeth, but it doesn't need teeth for such game. Hard places on the tongue and roof of the mouth are used instead of teeth.

The animal is also a porcupine of a sort. At least it has spines which stick out and threaten those who come near. When under attack, it rolls itself up in a ball and woe to the person who touches it unless he knows just the right place to take hold.

The proper place to catch a porcupine ant-eater is by the hind feet, and some of them have been captured in that manner. They have even been tamed and kept in pens. In such cases they have eaten bread and milk and have seemed to like such food. I should think they would prefer it to ants!

The spines or quills of the animal are yellow in color with black tips. Near its body is a coat of partly-black, partly-brown fur. The average length of the body is about 18 inches. It is an interesting fact that porcupine ant-eaters are found nowhere else on the globe than Australia and the nearby islands. It is a distant relative of the ant-eaters of South America.

MENT TO TAKE SEEN TODAY

IN SENATE OIL BOND INQUIRY
The oil bond inquiry in the Senate today will be the first since the hearing on the Continental bonds which ran in and out of the Republican national committee deficit settlement in 1923 in advance of the presidential campaign of 1924.

Secretary Mellon will be the first witness at the reopening of the hearing today. He probably will be followed by Mr. Hays, who was chairman of the Republican committee during the Harding campaign in 1920, and then Butler, the present chairman, and other witnesses.

Both Democratic and Republican members of the committee indicated yesterday their purpose to deal with the oil bond inquiry as a separate matter from the Continental bonds inquiry. They have without giving because he has failed in two previous appearances to give any inkling of his transaction with Mellon.

Special investigators of the committee, who have been examining the records of the New York agency of the Standard Oil Co., have found a large account carried in that bank by H. S. Osler, of Toronto, president of the Continental Co., separate from the $30,000,000 account of the Continental Co.

Butler leaves Boston to testify in capital. William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee, tonight made public the text of a letter which he had written to Senator Borah declaring neither he nor the committee had during his incumbency received securities or money from the Standard Oil Co.

HARLAND PROPOSES AUTOMATIC LIGHTS FOR BUSINESS AREA

Plans Traffic Control Systems for Thirteenth, G and F Streets.

IS BELIEVED PROMPTED
BY CONGRESS CRITICISM

Installation Would Begin at Once, With Equipment
Already Ordered.

Provisions for automatic traffic signal lights on certain streets in the downtown congested area were recommended to the District Commissioners yesterday by Traffic Director William H. Harland in a modification of the proposed traffic light installation program.

Along Thirteenth street from E street to Massachusetts avenue, Harland urged a synchronized system, and independent installations were recommended at the intersections of Sixth, Tenth and Thirteenth streets on F and G streets northwest. With these installations, the traffic director pointed out, traffic officers would be given an opportunity to study the "light" effect in the congested area and to determine the advisability of extending the system throughout the entire downtown area.

Believed Prompted by Congress. The lights for the downtown installations, under the recommendation, would be provided for by the elimination of installation at the intersections of New York and New Jersey avenues northwest, Eighth and East Capitol streets, Florida avenue and Eckington place northeast, Twelfth and L streets northwest, and Rhode Island and South Dakota avenues northeast. The installation program heretofore, called for equipment of these intersections with surplus supplies now in storage.

Recent criticism in Congress of the failure to install signal lights in the downtown section and thereby relieve traffic policemen from duties at intersections is believed to have prompted Harland's study and recommendation.

Would Begin Work at Once.

Installation of the downtown light system would be started immediately, according to the recommendation, and the 620 signals needed to carry out the program already have been ordered. Due to the low prices quoted on the new signals, Harland declared, approximately $20,000 will remain in the Traffic Bureau light fund. With this Harland plans to purchase additional signals and he is now preparing a program to use the equipment of the five intersections eliminated by his recommendation.

Stephen J. Demas, cash proprietor, 1706 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, also filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. The petition, filed through Attorney George E. McNeill, lists the debts as $10,075, which includes $54,400 worth of stocks.

Man Sues to Eject His Mother-in-Law

Roland H. Rowe, 4322 Fessenden street, northwest, sued yesterday to eject his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elvena G. Neal, from his home. Through Attorney David Richardson, the plaintiff says that Mrs. Neal, to whom he owed $1,000, promised him on February 12 that if he would pay this money she would leave. He paid the money the next day, Rowe says, but his mother-in-law stayed on and actually invited him to eject her. Rowe married in October, 1917, and lives at the Fessenden street home with his wife and two children, he says.

The plaintiff says that Mrs. Neal annoys him and her conduct toward him is an evil influence. On February 12, he says, she pointed a pistol at him and struck him in the face. He says that she is a trespasser and that he is entitled to an order from the court requiring her to leave the house.

HENDERSHOT DECLARES MOTOR PARALYZED HIM

Inventor Reveals 2,000 Volts
Passed Through Body
During Demonstration.

AMPERAGE SAVED LIFE

Lester J. Hendershot, of Pittsburgh, Pa., inventor of a so-called "miracle motor," a patent at the Emergency Hospital, yesterday revealed how he was partially paralyzed by a 2,000-volt high-frequency current Tuesday afternoon while demonstrating his motor to his patent attorney.

He refused to comment on rumors that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was interested in his invention, nor would he disclose details concerning the operation of his "miracle motor." The sudden inclination of Hendershot to "talk" yesterday was in direct contrast to his customary method of attaching the same air of mystery to himself as to the design of his motor.

In explaining the accident which forced him to seek hospital treatment Hendershot said he simply was experimenting with the motor in the office of his patent attorney, Henry Orth, Jr., in the Washington Loan & Trust Building when he received a shock from a 2,000-volt high frequency current that developed when the motor was turned on in the power line in the office building is of 110 volts and he explained that his low voltage could not have caused the shock. The low amperage of the current that shocked him was all that saved his life, he explained.

The shock knocked him to the floor and paralyzed his nerve. He was taken to Emergency Hospital in an ambulance and treated by Dr. William S. Marbury. The paralysis which affected the inventor throughout his body at first somewhat relieved, it was reported, Hendershot still is troubled with partial paralysis of his throat muscles and in his right leg.

While demonstrating the motor to Mr. Orth Hendershot said he grasped the motor with his fingers. The current, racing through his body, deadened the nerve centers affecting his arms, legs and throat. The only other reference he made to his "miracle motor" was that it was "not so large" and that it was not now being kept at the Bureau of Standards. He would not disclose where his motor was being kept. It was learned at the hospital that Col. Lindbergh had visited the inventor at least once during his visit to the Capital last week.

Trade Group Indorses Police Pay Increase

The Zihlman-Blanton bill to increase the pay of police and firemen was indorsed yesterday by the public order committee of the Board of Trade. Action on the bill was blocked by the House recently by Representative Madden (Republican), of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee.

Under the terms of the bill, all policemen and firemen would receive an increase of $300 a year. Officials of the two departments would receive raises of from $150 to $300. The committee estimated that the increase would cost the city about $800,000 a year and might mean an increase in the tax rate of about 8 cents.

JOBLESS SOON WILL WORK, DAVIS SAYS

be out of work was under 15,000 people. This was serious enough, but it was less than half the more conservative "estimate" and less than a fifth of the wilder one.

Similar counts from door to door, where there have so far been taken in other cities and States, reveal an almost identical contrast between the actual number out of work and the number of "estimates."

In the best of times there are always about 1,000,000 people out of work in the United States. Some are ill or injured. Many have left a job in one city to take a job in another city. Some are the restless and nomadic. The seasons affect many in the building and garment trades and in farm or other outdoor work. These may be only temporarily out of employment, but on the books from which the records in the Department of Labor are taken they are rated as "unemployed."

Of late years the rapid introduction of labor-saving machinery has displaced many workers who remain to be absorbed in newer industries. Had there been no such new industries to absorb this type of labor, we might have had an economic convulsion. In the past twenty years five great new industries have risen to save this situation, chiefly the automobile and the chemical and electrical industries. The development of these new industries goes right on.

While the present unemployment situation is not near so alarming as it is, it is sufficiently serious to give us earnest thought. I am convinced, however, that with the advancing season much of the present unemployment will disappear of its own accord. Farm labor is opening up. The Government and private enterprises have elaborate building programs on hand. The improvement in steel indicates a general improvement due in industry. With the coming of spring I believe the great bulk of the jobless will thus be soon reemployed, and by their increased buying and consuming power will increase demand and add stimulation to business in general.

Dentist Assessed $30,000 in Damages

A verdict for $30,000 damages, one of the largest ever returned in this jurisdiction for personal injuries, was returned yesterday by a Circuit Court jury in favor of Edmund L. Finch, 2551 Seventeenth street northwest, against Dr. Clarence H. Rowland, a dentist, 2412 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. This sum is the amount demanded by Finch. According to the evidence introduced by Finch by attorneys Lambert, Yeatman & Schwartz, the plaintiff engaged Dr. Rowland in October, 1924, to extract a tooth containing a filling and took gas for the operation. The dentist failed to pack the patient's throat, it was charged, and as a result the filling tumbled down Finch's throat and lodged in the right lung. Four operations were necessary, according to the testimony. The filling was finally expelled by a violent attack of coughing. It was stated. According to counsel for Finch, he is now an invalid.

ARTS BOARD CRITICIZES M STREET BRIDGE PLAN

Declares Structure Approved
by City Heads Would Be Perpetual Eye-Sore.

Q STREET SPAN PRAISED

The proposed bridge across M street north-west and Rock Creek Park, if constructed according to plans approved by the District Commissioners "will be a perpetual eye-sore," the National Commission of Fine Arts declared yesterday in a letter disapproving the plans.

The plans for a steel girder type of bridge over the drainage of the District superintendent of bridges and were approved by the Commissioners last week. The Commissioners pointed out that the law required the construction of a steel girder bridge in submitting the plans to the arts commission.

The letter of disapproval, in part, read: "The bridge, if constructed according to these plans, will be a perpetual eye-sore, conspicuous not only from the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge, but from the Rock Creek Park bridge, extending from the Lincoln Memorial to Rock Creek Park, a driveway which forms an essential portion of the park system of the District of Columbia." The Fine Arts Commission also pointed out that construction of the Q Street Bridge at Rock Creek Park has set a pace which should be maintained throughout the Rock Creek parkway.

Bill Would Change Congress Sessions

(Associated Press.)

An echo of the recent "lame duck" constitutional amendment fight in the House came yesterday with the introduction of a bill by Representative Summers (Republican), Washington, which would have Congress convene on the second weekday after March 4. The measure would change the date of the following presidential elections, when Congress would convene on the second Monday of February.

One of the objections to the White-Norris resolution, proposing a constitutional amendment establishing new dates for the convening of Congress, was that this purpose could be accomplished by the enactment of a law making an amendment unnecessary. Representative Summers has introduced a similar bill since the resolution was rejected by the House.

HOUSE COMMITTEE FAVORABLY REPORTS ON RETIREMENT BILL

Lehlbach Measure Would Increase Maximum Annuity
From $1,000 to $1,200.

MEASURE IS BASED ON EFFICIENCY SHOWN

Representatives of Employees
Are Confident of Passage if Vote Can Be Obtained.

The House civil service committee yesterday voted to make a favorable report on the Lehlbach bill liberalizing the present retirement law. Prospects for its passage, however, are regarded as poor.

The bill increases the maximum retirement annuity from $1,000 to $1,200, and makes retirement optional with the employee after 30 years' service, providing the employee is 60 years of age. The bill provides that the annuity shall be based on the employee's pay for any ten years of continuous service instead of the last years of service as at present. The unfairness of the present law in this respect was pointed out by the committee. The Lehlbach bill, when cases were cited where aged employees were kept in the service and given reduced salaries in line with their reduced efficiency.

Based on Efficiency. Under the new Lehlbach bill the annuity of such an employee would be based on the salary he was receiving when his efficiency was at its maximum, instead of the salary he was receiving at the end of his service.

The bill, as it will be reported, carries an amendment which provides that the employee who is retired, or disability shall, upon his recovery, be reinstated to his old position or one comparable to it. Until he is reinstated, he shall be paid the Lehlbach retirement roll and given an annuity. The committee rejected an amendment providing that the annuity of an employee already retired be based on the pay that he might be receiving now if he still were in the service, instead of the pay he was receiving at the time he was retired. In the opinion of members of the committee this would involve too much guess work.

Confident of Passage.

Representatives of the Federal employees, such as Luther C. Steward and Robert H. Alcorn, who are confident that Lehlbach bill could pass the House if it were brought to a vote. They have pointed out that approximately 100 members of the Lehlbach bill while the hearings on it were in progress.

The leaders in the House, however, are opposed to any immediate changes in the existing law. They feel that before any changes are made there should be an exhaustive study of the operation of the law at the present time.

Representative Madden (Republican), of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee, has introduced a bill providing for the creation of a commission to make such a study.

Berliner Plans Court Battle for Records

In an attempt to have the District Health Department and the District Commissioners grant him access to the records of the District, Emile Berliner yesterday retained attorneys in preparation for a court fight. Berliner, who for years has issued a booklet on the care and feeding of babies, was recently refused by Dr. William C. Fowler, health officer, the right to use the birth records as a mailing list for the booklet.

The District Commissioners and Corporation Counsel William W. Bride last week refused to stand the ground of Fowler when Mr. Berliner appealed to them to grant him use of the records. Until Dr. Fowler refused, Mr. Berliner for years has been using the records to compile a mailing list.

OVER HERE—OVER THERE—

The Marne Division

By Ernest Henderson

GLORIOUS AS WERE THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE 42nd AND 28th DIVISIONS IN STOPPING THE GERMANS IN THE SECOND BATTLE OF THE MARNE, IT WAS THE THIRD DIVISION WHICH HAD THE MOST TO DO WITH ASSOCIATING THE RIVER MARNE WITH THE HISTORY OF OUR ARMY.

IT WAS THE SEVENTH MOTORIZED BATTALION OF THE THIRD DIVISION, THAT HAD BEEN RUSHED INTO CHATEAU THIERRY IN MAY TO HOLD THE BRIDGES AGAINST THE GERMANS.

NOW THE 38th INFANTRY WAS TO PERFORM A MILITARY FEAT THAT WAS TO EARN FOR THEM THE TITLE OF THE "MARNE DIVISION" AND CITATIONS FROM BOTH THE FRENCH AND AMERICAN COMMANDS.

THROWN INTO THE FRONT, THE 38th INFANTRY, UNDER THE COMMAND OF BRIG. GEN. U. G. McALEXANDER, WAS TO STOP THE GERMAN HOSTS UPON ALMOST THE IDENTICAL SPOT ON WHICH THEY WERE STOPPED BY GEN. JOFFRE IN SEPTEMBER, 1914.

OUTNUMBERED IN SOME SPOTS TEN TO ONE, THEIR HEROIC AND SUCCESSFUL EFFORTS ON THE MARNE WON THIS CITATION. ON THIS OCCASION A SINGLE REGIMENT OF THE THIRD DIVISION WROTE ONE OF THE MOST BRILLIANT PAGES IN OUR MILITARY ANNALS.
